Fraser Smashes Port Mann Dike

VANCOUVER (CP)—Weakened by a night of rain, the Fraser River smashed its way through a small dike at Port Mann today, forcing 150 to 200 persons to evacuate their homes.

Port Mann is a Canadian National Railways divisional point, 20 miles east of here on the south bank of the river. The village of Port Mann has a population of about 300.

The dike is outside the main network of dikes on the Fraser, but a small dike, one-quarter of a mile long, protects low-lying land on its outskirts.

The evacuation order and the call for volunteers to bolster the dike came shortly after 4 a.m.

The swollen Fraser broke through a rain-weakened spot, cutting a 65 to 40-foot passage-way for the flood waters.

"The situation is not so serious," said a police spokesman directing the evacuation. "Most of the houses in the district are on high ground."

Elsewhere in the 100-mile long Fraser Valley dikes were holding and the situation was reported as "unchanged."

TRAIL HARD HIT

Most serious flood threat was at Trail. The industrial city's main street and low-lying residential areas are in the path of Columbia River flood waters.

World's Biggest Helicopter Wrecked In U.S.

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP)—The giant jet helicopter Howard Hughes was building for the United States Air Force Force tore loose from its moorings and was wrecked Thursday while undergoing ground tests.

No one was injured.

The massive craft, designated the XH-17, was rolled out for ground test March 27. The largest and most spectacular helicopter ever built, it was designed as a "flying crane" to lug huge loads, such as tanks, field guns and vehicles, for short distances. Its construction would permit it to settle over loads much in the fashion that a lumber carrier moves over a stack of boards. It was designed to lift a weight of some 10 tons.

The U.S. Air Force classed the XH-17 as a secret project. No details of the accident were disclosed.

U.S. ASSURES FREE PEOPLES OF FAR EAST

Defence Secretary Says Peace Is Aim

TOKYO (UP)—Defence Secretary Louis Johnson told the troubled nations of the Far East tonight that in their part of the world the United States would do everything necessary for "American security and the peace of the world."

Johnson's hint that the U.S. would maintain her present bases in the Far East came as he and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, ended a momentous mission to the Orient.

After high-level talks on U.S. policy, Johnson and Bradley took off by plane for the United States. They had arrived last Sunday for a complete survey with Gen. Douglas MacArthur of the United States' position and future in the Far East.

Johnson said he felt "generally optimistic" about the Far East, but he warned that "the security of America lies in with the way the United States maintains her position in the Far East."

Observers saw in his words an indication that the U.S. should maintain the bases established in the Orient during and since the war as the keystones of American security.

The hint was strengthened by Johnson's observation that he was glad to see the way the U.S. troops and the Japanese people were getting along. He said he was delighted to see, everywhere he had gone in Japan, American children playing with Japanese children.

The special Constellation carrying Johnson and Bradley home was flying by way of Alaska.

British Commons Ends Long Sitting

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons ended a marathon 14-hour session early today, during which the Labor government beat off all attempts by the Conservative Opposition to amend tax proposals.

During the debate, Brendan Bracken, wartime Information Minister, charged that the government had been acting as a "postoffice for Gen. MacArthur."

His criticism came in discussion of a complaint made by MacArthur, Supreme Allied Occupation Commander in Japan, against the Tokyo correspondent of the Times of London.

The government sent the complaint on to the Times.

U.S. Giant Bomber Fleet On Long Non-Stop Flight

HONOLULU (UP)—Six giant B-36 bombers flew over Wake Island today and roared on to the west in a 10,000-mile non-stop flight that may take them to the Far East and back.

It is the largest mass flight yet of the six-engined planes. Their flight distance will be equal to, a round-trip between New York and Moscow.

Air force authorities kept the armada's route secret, but said the planes would land at Honolulu, beginning at 8:20 p.m. By then, the planes will have been in the air for nearly 37 hours since they took off from Fairfield-Suisun air base in California.

At Wake, the bombers were nearly two-thirds of the way across the Pacific, 4,400 miles from their take-off and 2,400 miles beyond Honolulu.

Well within their flight range was Tokyo, Japan, 5,250 miles from their take-off point and 3,950 miles west of Honolulu.

There was speculation that the planes might fly over Tokyo in salute to U.S. Defence Secretary Louis Johnson, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to the State Department. They are visiting Japan, consulting Gen. Douglas MacArthur on military security and peace treaty problems.

Eight of the six-engined planes started on the mass flight, but the number five engine of one plane failed 150 miles from here, forcing the plane to an emergency landing Thursday night at Honolulu airport. It landed without incident.

Probe Sabotage In British Navy

LONDON (UP)—Communist saboteurs were blamed today for damaging the British submarine Tallyho at the Devonport naval yard, the sixth case of suspected sabotage on British warships in 18 months.

The Admiralty disclosed sand was found in the engines of the 1,080-ton Tallyho after they had jammed on a trial run. The submarine had been laid up in mid-stream at Devonport as part of the reserve fleet.

Naval authorities said they were almost certain Communist sympathizers were to blame for the Tallyho incident and five other cases of suspected sabotage.

These were: December, 1948—Seven steel bolts found jammed in a gearbox on the aircraft carrier Sydney.

January, 1948—A rag found in the oil pipe of the steering mechanism of the submarine Trenchant, sister ship of the Tallyho.

May 1, 1950—Three magnesium flares discovered before they could explode in the engine-room of the aircraft carrier Illustrious, which was carrying high-ranking naval officers.

June, 1950—A "serious explosion" occurred aboard the Trenchant at sea.

Auto Plant In Ontario Burns

TILBURY, Ont. (UP)—Fire destroyed the Chateo Steel Company, Hudson Motor Car Company's Canadian manufacturer, early today.

Firemen from several nearby towns brought the flames under control about four hours after the blaze swept the plant. Cause of the fire is unknown and authorities said a damage estimate might not be possible for several days.

The Chateo plant, about 40 miles east of Windsor, Ont., took over Hudson's Canadian assembly lines several months ago.

WANT MODERN U.S. WEAPONS FOR EUROPE

Plan May Meet With Opposition By G.O.P.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Administration forces opened a drive today for Senate approval of a program which would place the most modern weapons of the United States—except atomic bombs—along the defence frontiers of Western Europe.

Senator Tom Connally, Dem., Tex., will guide the $1,222,500,000 foreign arms plan into its second year of operation. There was trouble ahead—mostly from Republicans.

The major points of dispute the:

1. A provision to give President Truman authority to hand over $122,250,000 worth of arms to any European country whose defence he considers vital to the security of the United States.

2. An amendment which would permit the U.S. government to sell arms on credit to any friendly power.

3. A proposal by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Rep., Mass., to permit Marshall Plan countries to draw on $5,000,000,000 of European Recovery Funds for military purposes. These funds are local currencies deposited by European countries to match recovery dollars.

Judy Garland Kept Under Sedatives

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Judy Garland is being kept under sedatives so she can't repeat her suicide attempt, her agent said today.

"She apparently still doesn't know whether she wants to go on with life," Carleton Aloop explained. "So her hysteria has to be kept quiet."

"We don't know if she'll try again to kill herself. We hope not, but we can't take any chances."

The hollow-cheeked movie queen has been asleep, except for brief periods, since Monday night, when she gouged her throat with the jagged edge of a drinking glass after losing the starring role in "Royal Wedding" at M.G.M.

"She wakes up now and then and takes a little food," Aloop said. "But then she starts to cry and get excited again, so they put her back to sleep."

"Who knows what makes her cry? What made her do it in the first place? All we can do is protect her. A nurse is with her night and day."

NOT DAMMING RHINE

French Tell Of Plans To Hold Up Invasion

BONN, Germany (UP)—The French High Commission has announced that defence preparations had been made on all important traffic routes through West Germany and Western Europe.

The commission issued an official communique Thursday to answer recent press reports that the French were preparing to blow up the famed Lorelei Cliff and block the Rhine River in the event of war.

It admitted that "measures of a military nature" were being taken on the road below the Lorelei. But it said the measures, which were not specified, were "in no way an isolated instance."

Believe Killer Eluded Tight Net In Bushland

LANGTON, Ont. (CP)—A posse today patiently hunted a killer, but the trail appeared cold.

The bank robber, whose Sten gun wiped out two pursuers as he made his getaway, apparently had outwitted 100 policemen, backed by gun-toting farmers and aided by airplanes, a bloodhound and walkie-talkie equipment.

He had gained little from the bloody foray that followed Wednesday's armed robbery of the Imperial Bank of Canada branch in this town 20 miles southwest of St. Thomas. Most of his $23,000 loot was recovered in the abandoned automobile from which he slunk into the bush after cutting down the two men who attempted to stop him.

And beyond the search which still combed this tobacco-growing area, law-enforcement agencies in Canada and the United States sharpened their lookout for the unknown, saw-toothed thug in the dirty green shirt whose gunfire had riddled Art Lierman and William Goddyn as they sped from the bank in pursuit of his stolen car.

Police Thursday night conceded the killer probably had eluded the tight ring they had thrown around the Guysboro area six miles east of here.

The search was widened late Thursday to a general coverage of the London-Hamilton area.

BLOODHOUND FAILS

The bloodhound, brought in from Mount Clements, Mich., to scour the bushland, failed to reveal any leads and was returned home.

But police continued to patrol the area where Lierman, a 31-year-old insurance agent, and William Goddyn, 24-year-old operator of Lierman's farm, met their death.

Late Thursday, they scoured the farm of Alex Mackenzie who reported seeing a man entering the woods near his home. No trace was found of the killer. Several other leads ended in a dead end.

The search began two days ago in this quiet hamlet, about eight miles east of the scene of the double slaying, when the killer walked into a branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada and gathered up $23,000.

He escaped in a waiting automobile.

Major Strikes Threaten U.S. Labor Peace

By UNITED PRESS

Imminent strikes by C.I.O. auto workers and A.F.L. railroad men clouded the labor picture in the United States today.

The only bright spot was at Pittsburgh, where a 14-day strike by A.F.L. milk truck drivers appeared near settlement after shutting off milk deliveries to 3,000,000 persons.

At Morristown, Tenn., reinforced highway police patrolled the strikebound American-Enka Rayon mill where three non-strikers and a member of the striking C.I.O. Textile Workers were wounded in gunfights on Thursday.

The New York City Publishers' Association, meanwhile, called on the heads of seven printers' unions to order their members to cross picket lines of the striking C.I.O. Newspaper Guild at the New York World-Telegram and Sun. Members of craft unions have refused to cross the Guild's picket lines, preventing the paper from publishing.

The C.I.O. United Auto Workers ordered 30,000 members to strike Monday against the Briggs Manufacturing Company. The strike would halt delivery of auto bodies to Chrysler and Packard plants. Negotiations have broken down between the union and Briggs.

The U.A.W. executive board also approved plans for a strike against Hudson Motors due to "insufficient progress" on contract negotiations.

The A.F.L. Switchmen's Union made last-minute plans for a strike Sunday against the Denver and Rio-Grande Western, the Chicago Great Western, the Great Northern, the Rock Island and the Western Pacific Railroads.

Nine Survivors Of B-29 Saved In Mid-Pacific

GUAM (UP)—A rescue boat radioed today it was picking up nine survivors of the crash of a U.S. Air Force B-29 in the Pacific. The message said two crewmen were missing.

The rescue team salvaged eight of the men aboard two life rafts floating 140 miles southeast of Guam. Another survivor, the message said, was taken from the water.

The life rafts were located earlier today by search planes whose reports had held out hope that all 11 crewmen from the missing super-fortress were safe.

Experimental Jet Explodes; 3 Die

BEDFORD, Va. (AP)—A navy experimental jet plane—making its first transcontinental trip—burst into flames in mid-air and crashed near here Thursday night, killing at least three persons.

"There might have been more. . . . There were quite a few arms and legs which didn't match," said Dr. F. L. Johnson, Bedford coroner.

The plane, an AJ-1 with two reciprocating engines and one jet engine, was on its way from California to Patuxent, Md.

$2,600,000 School Construction Program To Be Revised; Contractors' Tenders Involved

Possibility that plans for over $2,600,000 school construction in the province will have to be revised because of lumber price increases is seen by school officials.

The new price of lumber also brings gloom for contractors due to start construction any time on an additional $1,800,000 school buildings.

Total Of Dead
In Columbia's
Floods Now 11

PORTLAND, Ore. (BUP)—The Columbia River and other flooding streams pounded through dikes in widely separated sections of the Pacific Northwest today, inundated homes and boosted to 11 the number killed since Saturday.

The floods hit towns in British Columbia, northern Oregon and northern Idaho. Some water-front industries in Portland were forced to shut down.

A levee in Columbia Diking District No. 1, gave way 20 miles northwest of Portland and flood waters swept into the downstream end of Sauvie Island.

In northern Idaho, 200 army engineers joined National Guardsmen and volunteers in patrolling the swollen Kootenai River as a strong wind whipped water against sodden dikes.

Elmer Fisher, weather bureau river forecaster at Portland, predicted the Columbia's crest would be a foot and a half higher than his previous forecast because of heavy rains in the watersheds.

Calgary Transit Workers Vote To Authorize Strike

CALGARY (BUP)—Officials of the Calgary Transit Workers' Union said today that membership of the union had voted in favor of a strike if their wage and hour demands were not met.

Officials of the balloting in the government-supervised vote conducted Thursday were not expected to be announced until next week, but union officials said the men were "overwhelmingly in favor of strike action."

The union could call a strike at any time after the result of the balloting was officially announced. A walkout would halt the city's 71 trolley coaches, 50 motor buses and six streetcars.

The transit workers demanded their 44-hour work week be cut to 40 hours with a reduction of 60 cents per month in take-home pay. The city council offered the men a three-dollar monthly raise with no cut in working hours.

1-Vote Margin For Anti-Red Bill

CAPETOWN (Reuter)—The South African Senate today adopted the suppression of communism bill by a one-vote margin on third reading. The deciding vote was cast by the Senate president, C. A. Van Niekerk, after the vote had been recorded at 18 to 18 in the 40-member chamber.

Opposition amendments were rejected in a series of divisions earlier by votes of 19 to 18, the absence of one opposition senator enabling the government to carry these divisions without the chairman's casting vote.

But even earlier in the debate, the president's verdict was needed in the three ties.

ASK ANOTHER $300,000
FOR P.M.'S NEW HOUSE

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe told the Commons today the government will ask it to vote another $300,000 for the completion of a permanent home for the Prime Ministers of Canada.

He said this amount, to be placed in supplementary estimates, will be in addition to $80,000 already included in the main estimates and another $300,000 spent in the last fiscal year—making a total of $410,000.

He said he wished to "admit" that the total, which includes $305,000 for the cost of the building and $105,000 for furnishing, is higher than the original rough estimate.

However, it had been found, on demolition of the interior, that the structure of the building selected had deteriorated to an extent that the house practically had to be rebuilt. In addition, building costs had risen substantially.

Reds Blamed For

Submarine Becomes Sixth Ship

LONDON (UP)—Communist saboteurs were blamed today for damaging the British submarine Tallyho at the Devonport naval yard, the sixth case of suspected sabotage on British warships in 18 months.

June, 1950—A "serious explosion" occurred aboard the Trenchant at sea.

June, 1950—The electrical system of the submarine Urania was reported overloaded as a result of suspect sabotage.

The Tallyho, Sydney and Urania incidents all occurred at Devonport. Investigators said the Communists have a strong foothold in Britain's docks and shipyards and they concentrated on checking the dossiers of known Communist sympathizers.

U.S. Told Why
Britain Not In Schuman Plan

WASHINGTON (UP)—British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks told Congress today that Britain is not ready to pool her economic resources with western Europe at the expense of other nations in the Commonwealth.

In a long letter relayed to the Senate foreign relations committee by Marshall Plan Administrator Paul G. Hoffman, Franks defended his country's role in promoting unification of western Europe. He rejected Congressional charges that Britain is withholding full co-operation with her Atlantic Pact partners.

He said the British Labor government has co-operated and will continue to co-operate to the full. But he said emphatically that Britain will not take any step toward economic integration with Europe that might impair her ties with the rest of the British Commonwealth.

As for the French coal-steel pool plan, he repeated only his government's announcement that it views the proposal in "sympathetic spirit."

But he reminded the Senate foreign committee that Britain has heavy responsibilities to its Commonwealth partners. The Commonwealth, he said, is "vital" to the defence of the free world.

Man Loses Leg
When Log Cars
Run Over Him

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Nanaimo man is fighting for his life in hospital here after falling under a runaway logging train at Nanaimo Lakes camp late Thursday.

Two other men escaped serious injury, leaping clear when the 10-car section loaded with logs came out of a siding and crashed into their locomotive.

W. J. Aitken, 42, of Vancouver, lost his left leg below the knee when the cars passed over him. Doctors are trying to save his right leg, nearly severed above the knee. His condition today was fair.

Officials of Comox Logging Company said the train crew was making up the train when the 10 cars began to move along the graded siding.

Aitken, brakeman on the train, apparently jumped aboard the head-end car and attempted to set an angle cock which would have thrown on a brake, stopping the train.

Witnesses said they weren't sure whether Aitken had missed his footing or become tangled in the braking apparatus.

Engineer Dan Adamson of Ladysmith and an unidentified fireman jumped to safety.

The injured man was taken to Nanaimo where an emergency operation was performed by Dr. Larry Giovando.

Theft Of Milk Gives Lead In Hunt
For Thug Who Robbed Bank, Slew 2

LANGTON, Ont. (CP)—Theft of some milk apparently by an elusive man later spotted by a telephone company employee, spurred the search today for the bank bandit who Wednesday shot and killed two pursuers.

A police-led posse, guns drawn, converged on the town line of Middleton and Houghton Townships, near the village of Glen Meyer, about five miles west of this community.

The milk was stolen during the night from a well on the farm of Ream Hall. A telephone lineman, Walter Stanson, reported today that he saw a man in white shirt and khaki trousers leap a fence and disappear into the bush.

Earlier, police intimated they have a particular man in mind as they press the grim hunt.

Inspector A. R. Knight, one of several senior Ontario provincial policemen directing a posse here, said investigators have "a good hunch" about the fugitive's identity.

"The way the bank robbery was handled gave us a good idea who the man is," he told reporters. He declined to elaborate.

Detective Sgt. Oliver Borland, Toronto police fingerprint expert, found a clear set of prints on the windshield of the killer's car. These were to be checked as soon as possible at R.C.M.P. headquarters in Ottawa and F.B.I. headquarters in Washington.

The bank robber, whose Sten gun wiped out two pursuers as he made his getaway, had gained little from the bloody foray that followed Wednesday's armed robbery of the Imperial Bank of Canada branch in this town 20 miles southwest of St. Thomas. Port Mann
Residents
Get Scare

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Fraser River, swollen by a night of rain, smashed its way through a small dike at Port Mann today, 20 miles east of here.

An evacuation order was issued to 200 persons along the river's bank, but few left their homes, and by 9 a.m. all had returned. The break came at 4 a.m.

Low-lying land was flooded but the situation was not considered serious.

Port Mann is a Canadian National Railways divisional point on the south bank of the Fraser. The village has a population of 300.

The district is outside the main network of dikes on the Fraser, but a small dike, one-quarter of a mile long, protects low-lying land on its outskirts.

The evacuation order and the call for volunteers to bolster the dike came shortly after 4 a.m.

The swollen Fraser broke through a rain-weakened spot, cutting a 35 to 40-foot passage-way for the flood waters.

"The situation is not too serious," said a police spokesman directing the evacuation. "Most of the houses in the district are on high ground."

Elsewhere in the 100-mile long Fraser Valley dikes were holding and the situation was reported as "unchanged."

TRAIL HARD HIT

Most serious flood threat was at Trail. The industrial city's main street and low-lying residential areas are in the path of Columbia River flood waters.

The death toll in the eighth day of the floods stood at three today. The victims were two boys and a man, drowned in turbulent waters.

Trail, 250 miles east of Vancouver and a city of 13,000, took on the appearance of a typical "flood town." Work crews, many of them high school students, constructed a sandbag dike along the main street. Pumps were placed at strategic points.

It was feared that the Columbia, swelled by heavy rains, would rise another five feet to its 1948 level of 46 feet.

The Columbia rose 1.17 feet in 24 hours. The neighboring Kootenai River also was surging upward. This river meets the Columbia at Castlegar, 20 miles north of Trail.

At Lower Riverside, a residential section of Trail, homes were anchored with cables.

J. V. Rogers, flood controller, Thursday night termed the situation "critical," but the moment, "in hand."

C.M.H.C. To Be Sued In Alberta
Supreme Court

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada, overruling Alberta justices, today allowed a Calgary couple to start suit against the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in a provincial court.

It reversed a decision of the Supreme Court of Alberta which held that Crown corporations could only be sued in the Exchequer Court of Canada, a federal court, and not in any of the courts of the provinces.

In its judgment, the Supreme Court of Canada dismissed a motion to strike out the C.M.H.C. as a defendant in a triple-action suit by Mr. and Mrs. George Yeats of Calgary against the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company, the Bow River Construction Company and the Crown corporation.

The federal government is making an initial grant of $12,500,000 to the Manitoba government. Another $1,000,000 is earmarked to provide for costs to be incurred in the planning and construction of emergency works to safeguard against future floods. The federal government will pay 75 per cent of the cost of such works.

The federal government is matching Quebec government grants of $2,500,000 to Rimouski and $300,000 to Cabano.

A $13,000,000 item in the supplementary estimates was to cover the cost of freight assistance on coarse grains shipped from the prairies to eastern Canada and to British Columbia.

Divorces Challenge To Marriages During June

June may be the month for weddings but it also ranks high as a month for divorces. They run neck and neck.

Courthouse registry records show that since June 1, 24 divorce cases have been heard to date by Supreme Court in Victoria.

But that isn't all. Nineteen other cases have yet to be heard during the next week. The grand total for the month will be 43 divorces.

The majority of divorce cases are undefended and take little time to dispose of.

Records show that more divorces were listed for hearing in June than any other month since the start of the year.

U.S. Giant Bomber Fleet On Long Non-Stop Flight

HONOLULU (UP)—Six giant B-36 bombers flew over Wake Island today and roared on to the west in a 10,000-mile non-stop flight that may take them to the Far East and back.

It is the largest mass flight yet of the six-engined planes. Their flight distance will be equal to a round-trip between New York and Moscow.

Nine Survivors Of B-29 Saved In Mid-Pacific

GUAM (UP)—A rescue boat radioed today it was picking up nine survivors of the crash of a U.S. Air Force B-29 in the Pacific. The message said two crewmen were missing.

The rescue team said it found eight of the men aboard two life rafts floating 140 miles south-east of Guam. Another survivor, the message said, was taken from the water.

The life rafts were located earlier today by search planes whose reports had held out hope that all 11 crewmen from the missing super-fortress were safe.

U.S. Labor Front Under 2 Threats

Auto Workers, Railwaymen May Join Newsmen, Rayon Makers

By UNITED PRESS

Imminent strikes by C.I.O. auto workers and A.F.L. railroad men clouded the labor picture in the United States today.

The only bright spot was at Pittsburgh, where a 14-day strike by A.F.L. milk truck drivers appeared near settlement after shutting off milk deliveries to 3,000,000 persons.

At Morristown, Tenn., reinforced highway police patrolled the strikebound American Enka Rayon mill where three non-striking and a member of the striking C.I.O. Textile Workers were wounded in gunfights on Thursday.

The New York City Publishers' Association, meanwhile, called on the heads of seven printers' unions to order their members to cross picket lines at the striking C.I.O. Newspaper Guild at the New York World-Telegram and Sun. Members of craft unions have refused to cross the Guild's picket lines, preventing the paper from publishing.

U.S. ASSURES FREE PEOPLES OF FAR EAST

Defence Secretary Says Peace Is Aim

TOKYO (UP)—Defence Secretary Louis Johnson told the troubled nations of the Far East tonight that in their part of the world the United States would do everything necessary for "American security and the peace of the world."

Johnson's hint that the U.S. would maintain her present bases in the Far East came as he and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, ended a momentous mission to the Orient.

After high-level talks on U.S. policy, Johnson and Bradley took off by plane for the United States. They had arrived last Sunday for a complete survey with Gen. Douglas MacArthur of the United States' position and future in the Far East.

Johnson said he felt "generally optimistic" about the Far East, but he warned that "the security of America ties in with the way the United States maintains her position in the Far East."

Observers saw in his words an indication that the U.S. should maintain the bases established in the Orient during and since the war as the keystones of American security.

The hint was strengthened by Johnson's observation that he was glad to see the way the U.S. troops and the Japanese people were getting along. He said he was delighted to see everywhere he had gone in Japan, American children playing with Japanese children.

The special Constellation carrying Johnson and Bradley home was flying by way of Alaska.

The C.I.O. United Auto Workers ordered 30,000 members to strike Monday against the Briggs Manufacturing Company. The strike would halt delivery of auto bodies to Chrysler and Packard plants. Negotiations have broken down between the union and Briggs.

The U.A.W. executive board also approved plans for a strike against Hudson Motors due to "insufficient progress" on contract negotiations.

The A.F.L. Switchmen's Union made last-minute plans for a strike Sunday against the Denver and Rio Grande Western, the Chicago Great Western, the Great Northern, the Rock Island and the Western Pacific Railroads.

Seek Vancouver Couple On Island

Provincial Police on the island are trying to locate Mr. and Mrs. John Corlette, Vancouver, to relay information to them that they are wanted at home because their one-year-old child is very sick.

The Corlettes are in a car being driven by Donald McDonald of Vancouver. Police did not immediately have the license number of the car. Anyone knowing the whereabouts of the Corlettes is asked to pass on the information or contact B.C. Police.

WANT OIL, PERFUME, PILLS OFF INDIAN TABOO LIST

Amendments to the Indian Act to permit the sale of headache tablets, cod liver oil and perfumes to B.C. Indians, was passed by the annual convention of the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association meeting here.

Indians under the present act are prohibited from buying extract of cod liver oil and perfumes because of their alcoholic contents.

Delegates felt that the act was out-of-date and prevented Indians from obtaining relief from drugs when sick or in pain. The resolution will be forwarded to the Canadian Pharmacy headquarters in Ottawa which will take the matter up with the federal government.

NOT DAMMING RHINE

French Tell Of Plans To Hold Up Invasion

BONN, Germany (UP)—The French High Commission has announced that defence preparations had been made on all important traffic routes through West Germany and Western Europe.

The commission issued an official communique Thursday to answer recent press reports that the French were preparing to blow up the famed Lorelei Cliff and block the Rhine River in the event of war.

It admitted that "measures of a military nature" were being taken on the road below the Lorelei. But it said the measures, which were not specified, were "in no way an isolated instance."

"These are preparations taken in the framework of an inter-allied decision and are the same as those which may be noted elsewhere, at important traffic points, not only in West Germany, but also in France and other countries of Western Europe," the communique said.

Judy Garland Kept Under Sedatives

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Judy Garland is being kept under sedatives so she can't repeat her suicide attempt, her agent said today.

"She apparently still doesn't know whether she wants to go on with life," Carleton Alsop explained. "So her hysteria has to be kept quiet."

"We don't know if she'll try again to kill herself. We hope not, but we can't take any chances."

The hollow-cheeked movie queen has been asleep, except for brief periods, since Monday night, when she gouged her throat with the jagged edge of a drinking glass after losing the starring role in "Royal Wedding" at M.G.M.

"She wakes up now and then and takes a little food," Alsop said. "But then she starts to cry and get excited again, so they put her back to sleep. 'Who knows what makes her cry? What made her do it in the first place? All we can do is protect her. A nurse is with her night and day.'"

Senate Asked To Allow Best Of U.S. Arms For European Defence

WASHINGTON (AP)—Administration forces opened a drive today for Senate approval of a program which would place the most modern weapons of the United States—except atomic bombs—along the defence frontiers of Western Europe.

Senator Tom Connally, Dem., Tex., will guide the $1,222,500,000 foreign arms plan into its second year of operation. There was trouble ahead—mostly from Republicans.

The major points of dispute are:

1. A provision to give President Truman authority to hand over $122,250,000 worth of arms to any European country whose defence he considers vital to the security of the United States.
2. An amendment which would permit the U.S. government to sell arms on credit to any friendly power.
3. A proposal by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Rep., Mass., to permit Marshall Plan countries to draw on $5,000,000,000 of European Recovery Funds for military purposes. These funds are local currencies deposited by European countries to match recovery dollars.

Different Views—Same Result

IN A TIME OF UNCERTAINTY IT IS the essence of wisdom to provide insurance against any eventuality. Especially in these days of ideological unrest to hope for peace but prepare to defend oneself. The preparation itself may lessen the chances that the defences must be used, for an enemy that resorts to force must also be impressed by a display of force. To "trust in God but keep your powder dry" is a blend of idealism and practicality that is peculiarly apt today. At no time in history have both concepts been more important to the welfare of free peoples. At no time have the twin threats of aggression and slavery been more imminent.

The news columns each day quote the opinions of various leaders to the effect that war between East and West is inevitable or that it is not. Yesterday we noted the words of two men eminent in international affairs which appeared to be contradictory. But closer study revealed that there was much in common in their thinking. Their approaches to the problem showed the same basis of reasoning. We refer, of course, to the speech in Vancouver, of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canada's wartime military leader and present representative on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, and to the Cambridge, Mass., address of U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Seeing Russia as a country in the control of a regime bent on world power, Gen. McNaughton warned that the North American continent was in the nature of the "arsenal of democracy," and as such would be a desirable prize for the Soviet to capture or destroy. He saw war as highly probable because of the likelihood that Russia eventually would be forced to resort to arms to try to achieve her objective. The so-called cold war can carry her only so far, and it is not the way of totalitarian nations to call a halt to expansion until everything has been won or complete defeat has been suffered. The obvious conclusion of this thinking, then, in the words of the General, was that until an effective disarmament program can be achieved, the West needs all the armed forces and resources that can be mustered.

Mr. Acheson, while recognizing "the inordinate ambition" of Russian leaders, felt that strong action by the democracies could avert an open conflict. But his remedy was the same. "We are building our strength," he said, "in order that we may eliminate the conditions which would give rise to war, and we are on the threshold of a new period in the successful forward movement of this effort." That is a somewhat more optimistic outlook, but it has inherent in it the same grim need to fortify ourselves against what may be in store. It is not a particularly pleasant prospect, nor is it an inexpensive way of life, but it is insurance against what could be a much greater—a catastrophic—loss.

Still A Place For Them

THE SOCIOLOGICAL PROBLEMS raised by advancing age are receiving more and more attention these days, particularly in so far as they relate to the employment of elderly workers in industry. Studies initiated by government as well as by private investigators have revealed that the man in the fifties or sixties still has much to contribute to the nation's productive machine. He can bring to his work a greater sense of responsibility, a steadiness and ability deriving from longer experience, a greater determination to stay with a job that he hopes will carry him through to the end of his working days. Accident rates have been shown to be more favorable in the higher age brackets; absenteeism also is reduced.

The current campaign to keep the older breadwinner in employment receives strong support from Dr. Harry Cassidy, the former director of Social Welfare for this province, who now is with the University of Toronto. "It is not feasible to retire everyone at 65," he told a Gyro Club audience here. "Firms that are turning down job applicants over the age of 40 or 45 years are doing a grave disservice to the country." Pensions, he pointed out, do not provide the full answer. If wages and pensions can only come out of the productivity of the nation, then the longer the average of retirement is postponed the more workers there will be to bear the burden of providing such wealth.

The healthful effect of continued activity for aging persons has been stressed by medical authorities. In too many cases those who retire fade quickly away, their reason for continuing an interest in life having disappeared. With a larger and larger proportion of our modern population entering the higher age brackets we may have to revise much of our thinking along these lines. "Too old for the job" may still be a legitimate comment in some cases, but "too old for any job is an exaggeration."

Well-Deserved Promotion

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S BUSINESS men in particular and a host of personal friends in general will have heard with mixed feelings of the translation of Mr. George H. Baillie, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's Pacific region for the last three years, from this province to the eastern region. They will be genuinely jubilant over the fact that the world-wide transportation system which he has served so faithfully and efficiently for so long again has recognized his sterling worth; for the move he is about to make represents a well-earned promotion. They will be equally genuine when they assure him that his going will leave a gap in more ways than one; for his practical optimism always spelt progress in capital letters, while his genial disposition and ready smile endeared him to many who will wish him well and watch his future career with more than ordinary interest. It is good to learn, moreover, that Mr. Baillie's successor at the Vancouver headquarters will be Mr. William Manson, who is well and favorably known throughout this province. His elevation, too, bears witness to his fine record in the railway business.

U.K. Labor Party's Pamphlet Revives Isolationist Criticism

By NORA BELOFF from Washington

REAFFIRMATION of British foreign policy in both Houses of Parliament has failed to wipe out Washington suspicions that the Labor Party pamphlet issued last week amounts to straight betrayal of Britain's European commitments. Senior officials of the State Department who reject this view are anxiously awaiting something more specific from Downing Street to help them clear up the confusion.

NEGATIVE UTTERANCES

Only selected extracts from the Labor Party statement have appeared in the American press, and these are limited to its negative utterances against the surrender of national sovereignty. These are interpreted to mean that Socialist Britain has turned its back on Europe and will not co-operate internationally except with other Socialist communities.

It is too soon to predict just how much the publication of this controversial statement at this particular time will cost Britain in terms of concrete dollar aid. Almost certainly it will discourage long-term American assistance in European recovery and quite probably it may result in cuts in the current year's expenditure under the Marshall Plan.

American officials sponsoring the Marshall Plan have consistently opposed suggestions for cutting it for political reasons. Nevertheless, they have already encountered tough opposition and are inclined to resent the additional difficulties which the anti-unification pamphlet of the Labor Party will now thrust into the debate.

Here are four predictable results of the pamphlet on this side of the Atlantic: One, it will further undermine American confidence in the Marshall Plan. The plan itself was "sold" to the American public on the slogan of "unification." The Labor Party pamphlet effectively eliminates this cheery concept.

Two, The Labor statement unquestionably has added to Secretary of State Acheson's accumulating difficulties. After his London visit he publicly reaffirmed his confidence in Western Europe and urged Americans to respond to the bold new spirit of enterprise in the Old World.

Three, The pamphlet has offered additional material to those sectors of the American community which traditionally enjoy "twisting the lion's tail." Anti-British Congressmen from Irish or Zionist voting districts are certain to make good use of it.

GENERAL FEELING

Four, The whole incident has resurrected the traditional idea of "Perfidious Albion." Americans are inclined to distrust "smart" British diplomats and remain hyper-sensitive about being—to use a well-known American phrase—"played for a sucker." There is a general feeling that this is just what has happened; that Britain has obtained United States assistance in reconstruction and recovery under the false pretence that this would result in a European unity which it never intended to permit.

Victory In '50?

By JOSEPH ALSOP

THE CHOICE now confronting the United States and the western world is a choice between total defeat in the cold war, and something very close to final victory. There is fearful danger of defeat, because the defences of the west are not being rebuilt while the Soviet Union re-arms. Because the danger is so great, this point has been emphasized in this final summing up of the experiences of a long journey abroad.

On the other hand, however, there is every reason why we in the west should feel encouraged and even optimistic about the future, provided we have the guts and good sense to launch the needed defence effort without further delay. This is the other side of the medal, which must also be held in view.

THE JUSTIFICATION for this optimism is, very simply, what we have already accomplished. It is too easy, nowadays, not to notice how far we have come already. It is too easy to forget the summer of 1947, when crises of misery threatened every nation in western Europe; when no western European government possessed more than the shadow of authority; when it was overwhelmingly probable that most of the continent would be in Communist hands within 12 to 18 months.

This was another moment when we skirted the perilous brink of total defeat in the cold war. But in 1947, we acted in time. The interim aid bill and the Marshall plan gave the Europeans the necessary margin, the necessary self-confidence, to rebuild their war-shattered economies. Now, in the summer of 1950, we can look around us, and be sure that we have scored a brilliant success.

ANYONE WOULD be a fool to say, of course, that the Marshall plan has produced final solutions of Europe's ancient problems. There are still internal political-economic problems of the utmost gravity, particularly in western Germany and Italy. There is also the problem of the pattern of the new Europe, which is customarily but badly conveyed in the phrase, "European integration." The one great mistake that was made at the launching of the Marshall plan, was to let people hope for overnight solutions of Europe's immense, complex and immemorial problems.

The notion was silly from the first. We should not carp and complain because a federal Europe has not miraculously sprung into being. Instead, we should be delighted that the broad tendency is now good, as is shown by the superb French initiative of the Schuman-Monnet plan for a new Franco-German relationship.

IT IS EVEN more important, furthermore, that life has now come back to this western Europe that was so close to death in 1947. Indeed, to say that life has come back is the only way to describe the astonishing change, which any traveler finds in any European country, even including the worst afflicted, Austria and Germany.

As with any patient returning to health, scores of symptoms, little and big, all indicate the alteration. Everything is different, from the production indices to the conversation of the people in the open-air cafe. In short, the first part of the job in Europe has been done, thus far, in a better way than could have been hoped.

THIS IS doubly important. For this return of life in western Europe, made possible by our first really big effort, should give us the self-confidence for the next big effort that is now demanded. And this return of life equally will permit our European partners and allies to bear their share of the burden in this next big effort of defence.

We can of course fail to make the effort. Or we can even forget that our allies overseas are only convalescent, and destroy our whole success by pushing onto them defence burdens more heavy than they are yet ready to bear. Either way, disaster lies. On the other hand, if we now meet this challenge of the defence problem, the gain will not be merely negative and protective.

IN TRUTH, one of the two or three really fundamental political facts in Europe today—and here eastern Europe may be included—is the vast influence of fear of the Kremlin's military power. Because of this fear, the western European Communists, and their colleagues in the satellite areas, expect the Kremlin to win in the end. Because of this fear, the Kremlin still has the advantage of a certain bandwagon psychology, even although this has been greatly diminished by the Marshall plan's success.

REMOVE the fear. Create a bandwagon psychology about the success of the West. The Kremlin will then experience the worst of all misfortunes for imperialist totalitarianism—a heavy check of momentum. One cannot now foretell exactly how this kind of check of momentum would finish off the western European Communist parties, opening the way for the creation of a healthy, independent left-wing movement. One cannot now foretell exactly how this check of momentum would influence the internal situation in the satellite area, preparing for the eventual retreat of Russia from Europe.

But one can be certain that this broad kind of development will occur, if the Kremlin's momentum is indeed checked, and the new situation is then wisely exploited. And if these things happen, the cold war will have been pretty well won.

"The Pilgrims broke loose from England to come to America to get away from taxes." History note. Didn't they play some joke on their descendants?

Who's That Knocking At My Door?

Problem Of China's U.N. Seat

By PETER EDSON From New York

FIRST showdown on U.S. relations with the Chinese—both Nationalists and Communists—may come in September when United Nations General Assembly and Security Council meet again.

An initial test may come on a move to unseat the Chinese Nationalist government's delegate to the General Assembly. Since the heat is now on from the Russian bloc to have the Nationalist government expelled from the U.N., this will be an important vote.

CONTINUE RECOGNITION

Expulsion of any member from the United Nations must first be recommended to the Assembly by the Security Council. The United States has taken the position that it recognizes only the Nationalist government and will continue to recognize it.

In the Security Council, the United States will take the position that it will vote against admission of the Communists' so-called Chinese People's Republic, but will not consider this a veto. That means the question could be decided in the Security Council by a majority, or seven of the 11 members.

Last year, the Russians might have had such a majority, since France and Egypt were about to recognize the Chinese Communist government, along with Britain, Yugoslavia, Norway, India, Russia. At the inopportune moment, however, the Russians recognized the Ho Chi Minh movement in French Indo-China. That made France decide to switch its vote and it raised the interesting question of whether the Russians really want Communist China in the United Nations.

The United Nations charter established China as one of the five permanent members of the Security Council. The possibility of a major power becoming so weak that it could not hold its own as a permanent member of the Security Council was not envisaged by the U.N. founding fathers.

Dr. T. F. Tsiang, the Chinese Nationalist U.N. delegate, has said that he will veto any move to unseat his government, which he apparently has the right to do as long as it exists.

Anyway, assuming that expulsion of the Nationalists and admission of the Communists could be recommended by the Security Council majority to the General Assembly, it would require a two-thirds majority of those present and voting in the G.A. to carry these actions. Here an interesting parliamentary situation might develop.

Curiously enough, most of the pressure on the United States from other countries is that it should change its position. The fact that it is the Russians who have caused these strained relations in the U.N. by their walkouts and boycotts is ignored.

But getting the Russians to change their position on anything seems to be considered hopeless. So those who fear that the present stalemate might wreck the United Nations should find some new ground upon which to stand.

There are somewhat plausible reasons why none of the existing Chinese governments should represent the Chinese people in the United Nations. The Nationalist government now controls only the island of Formosa. The Communist government in Peking does not control all of old China. Manchuria, Mongolia and Sinkiang seem to be in the process of being detached by the Russians. And there are apparently considerable areas under guerrilla or war lord control.

POLICY LINE

The possibility of the United States taking the policy line that there is no representative Chinese government has been suggested. It would be a counter-offensive measure to the Russian campaigns in China. But there are good reasons why the United States should not adopt this policy. Revision of the United Nations charter, to exclude China as a permanent member of the Security Council, would probably lead to wrecking the whole organization.

As Our Readers See It

RETAIL LUMBER PRICES

I would appreciate a little space in your columns to refute a wrong impression that has been created among the general public, by erroneous reports published in the press and broadcast over the radio, to the effect that the retail price on common lumber was raised $26 per thousand feet in Victoria and only raised $10 in Vancouver this week, although the retail price in both cities is the same, $96.

Going back to last February, when the retail price was raised here from $60 to $70, in Vancouver it was raised from $60 to $71. Since that time the wholesale market has been climbing steadily and Vancouver retail prices have been raised from time to time to keep pace with the market, whereas the Victoria retailers have consistently tried to hold to the $70 price until it got to the point where it was impossible to buy even wholesale at that price, and in consequence there has been practically no common frame lumber available in any of the yards for the past month or more, and it finally became necessary to raise prices in accordance with the market to make any lumber available to the general public at all.

I would like to draw attention to the fact that for the past few months, retail prices of lumber in Victoria have been considerably lower than in Vancouver, Nanaimo or even Duncan, in spite of the fact that these points are nearer the main source of supply, and Victoria retailers have been trucking or shipping lumber by freight from Hillcrest, Che-mainus, Youbou and other points up island, but still maintained the lower retail price despite all the extra cost.

While on the topic of lumber prices, it is erroneous to create the impression that wages regulate the selling price of lumber or vice versa. It entirely depends on the export market. When the export demand is great, the price raises accordingly, and although I have personally no interest in any sawmill, it is only fair to say that in spite of the fact that the present export price is $84 (Canadian funds) for common lumber, millions of feet of lumber have been supplied, and are still being supplied to local projects the old prices, and distributed locally at wholesale prices far below the export price by some of the large local mills, and I think credit is due them for doing so.

In the past 10 years lumber has risen from $25 per thousand feet to $96, and during the same period beef steak has also risen from 22c per lb. to 95c due to export markets, but I have not yet noticed where the City Council has passed a resolution deploring the price of beef steak or threatening to appeal to Ottawa about it.

When the mills are getting high prices for their lumber, the logging operator demands a higher price for logs, and the mill-hands, loggers and wood workers demand higher wages. The consumer public foots the bill and the retail lumber dealer takes all the blame and abuse.

A REVERSAL of the current American policy of withholding aid from the Communist-menaced Chinese island of Formosa may be pressed in word from Tokyo that Gen. MacArthur and John Foster Dulles, United States State Department adviser, are agreed on the necessity of prompt help.

As a matter of fact Washington already has been giving the hands-off policy a going over. Up to this juncture military aid and advice to the forces of Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa have been ruled out.

Whether there will be any striking change in American policy presumably will depend on the report which Defense Secretary Louis Johnson makes on his return from conferences with MacArthur in Tokyo.

Those who urge aid for Formosa hold that its possession by the Communists would create a threat to American defenses.

Two interesting facts mark the situation since the Chinese Communists completed their conquest of the mainland. One is that the Reds haven't followed up by a quick assault on Formosa. The other is that Chiang has taken advantage of this respite to withdraw 150,000 troops from the island of Chusan to the north and incorporate them in his Formosa army.

Thus we find the Nationalist leader supported by about 400,000 soldiers. Of course this force is under-equipped, but it is said to be sufficiently provided with small arms to give a good account of itself in defensive combat.

And why haven't the Chinese Communists attacked Formosa?

Nationalist sources say one reason is that the Reds lack sufficient shipping to move their troops.

COMMON SENSE AT WORK

Montreal Gazette
Honor and praise be to the International Air Transport Association. It gives this troubled, weird world a fine demonstration of the result of applying common sense to international dealings.

This organization has 37 members, all of them collecting passenger and freight money in one currency and having bills to pay in some other money—francs, bolivars, sterling, pesetas, soles, guilders, so on and so on.

Through its international clearing system, I.A.T.A. settled 87% of the world's international airline money problems for March, 1950, without moving a franc or a dollar or any other currency.

As in the case of the safety pin, every one is looking at the next fellow with one of those "We should have thought of that" glances. Let's hope the I.A.T.A. example is not lost on this world of complexity.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

"I SOMETIMES wonder," said the Elevator Man, "if the African natives didn't have the right slant on things after all. They used to believe—and maybe some still do—that the mechanical inventions we brought to their country were really supernatural creatures that could do them harm. An airplane was a giant bird that might swoop on them. A car was a devil wagon that might rush at them and kill them. (This is all in Africa, of course, not Douglas Street.) They overlooked the human being at the controls and gave all the magic to the mechanism itself. Silly, eh? But every now and then our inventions cut loose and act as though they really had a devil in them. Lower main!"

"I remember once," said the Elevator Man, "reading a story about a robot that was made to wait. The inventor's daughter tried it out in a ballroom, and everything went fine. But after a while the machine bumped a chair. The mechanism was knocked out of kilter and started to dance faster and faster. The girl couldn't escape from the metal arms and was eventually buffeted to death while the music played on. A grim story. But no more tragic than the news item from Seattle about the man who spent seven years working on a machine to hold logs rigid in sawmills. While he was doing some last-minute tinkering a roller crushed his head. Machines are not like children. They know no gratitude or loyalty to their creators. Mezzanine!"

"It makes you wonder," said the Elevator Man, "what will be the nature of the machines the totalitarian states are creating. The human robots Stalin is turning out as the highest product of Communism may act the same way. They may wait their chance and turn on the ones who created them. Machines have no feelings—or have they?"

Margarine Issue Goes To Privy Council For Ruling

Government Supporting Dairy Farmers In Contention Matter Belongs To Provinces

LONDON (CP)—The status of Canadian margarine Thursday sent the law lords of Britain's Privy Council into a huddle with lawyers over the British North America Act of 1867.

The law lords were considering an appeal against a decision by Canada's Supreme Court that a federal law barring margarine was invalid. On the basis of that decision, more than a year ago, margarine came flooding into Canadian stores and pantries.

F. P. Varcoe, Deputy Minister of Justice, renewed arguments for the government against the Supreme Court judgment that sale of margarine is a matter of provincial jurisdiction. The appellants are the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and the Dairy Farmers of Canada which the government supports in this argument.

After hearing Varcoe's argument, the judicial committee of the council adjourned hearings until Monday.

Main issue in dispute is section 5a of Canada's Dairy Industry Act which stipulates that "no person shall manufacture, import into Canada or offer, sell or have in his possession for sale, any oleomargarine, margarine, butterine or other substitute for butter manufactured wholly or in part from any fat other than that of milk or cream."

The Supreme Court ruling, given in December, 1948, declared that the section concerned civil rights, which under the exclusive jurisdiction of the provinces. The section was declared ultra vires (outside the jurisdiction) of the federal Parliament.

Today Varcoe contended that the Supreme Court had committed a "fundamental error" in considering the question one of property and civil rights.

Farewell Gathering For Rev. J. G. Jackson

An engraved watch and a wallet were presented to Rev. J. C. Jackson by members of the congregation of James Bay and Victoria West United Churches at a farewell gathering. Mr. Jackson, minister of both churches for the past nine years, has accepted a call to the United Church of Grand Forks, B.C.

Following a dinner, A. W. Wright, J. Morland and F. H. Schroeder expressed appreciation for the services rendered both churches by the pastor in the past nine years.

Rev. W. R. Ashford, minister of Centennial United Church and chairman of the Presbytery, praised Mr. Jackson for his cooperation and said the latter had always been held in high esteem in clerical circles.

The next appearance of Halley's comet is expected early in 1986.

Too Many Fruits Spoil Crop And Injure Trees

By JACK G. BEASTALL

Too many fruits can spoil the crop, and thinning not only improves the quality but also benefits the tree.

Overloaded trees often lose limbs from breakage and require several years to recover. Also, limiting the crop to what a tree can properly mature is an important factor in conserving its strength and vigor.

With varieties which tend to overproduce, thinning will increase the size of the remaining fruit, improve its color and flavor, and reduce the damage done by insects and disease. Brown rot of stone fruits is said to be lessened when the fruits are spaced because they dry off quickly and are more easily covered with control sprays.

BALANCES PRODUCTION

Most thinning is carried out after the "June drop," which is nature's own way of reducing the number of set fruit to balance with the amount of plant food available.

Studies made of apple thinning revealed that, generally, about 30 leaves are required to properly mature a single fruit. In some varieties, such as Delicious, as many as 50 leaves are needed.

The leaves must be on the same branch as the fruit because there is no transfer of food from one branch to another. Therefore, heavily-laden branches should be thinned even though nearby branches bear no fruit whatever.

Apples are thinned immediately after the "June drop," when the fruit is about one inch in diameter. Shaking the branches will dislodge any loose fruit, and then all but one of a cluster is removed and the remainder spaced about six to eight inches apart.

PITS EXHAUST TREES

Peaches are thinned after the "June drop" and before the pit hardens; the production of pits is exhausting to a tree. Fruits are spaced six to eight inches, depending on the variety, and more may be left on the outer part of the tree where the foliage is more efficient.

Pears seldom need thinning, though it should be practiced on crowded trees.

Apricots need sufficient space not to touch when ripe, and plums are thinned when the fruit is about three-quarters of an inch in diameter, leaving the remainder three to four inches apart.

Slow Driving On Bridge Urged

NANAIMO (BUP)—Mayor Earle Westwood has appealed to citizens to keep to a 10-mile-an-hour speed limit while crossing the city's Millstream bridge.

The city's by-law specifying a 10-mile-per-hour limit on the bridge was ruled unenforceable Wednesday by Magistrate Lionel Beever-Potts. Mrs. F. Cunliffe was acquitted on a charge of going more than the speed limit on the bridge.

However, Mayor Westwood said that, for safety's sake, motorists should not do more than 10 miles an hour on the bridge.

Regains His Sight

HULL, Yorkshire, Eng. (Reuter)—Told by doctors he would never see again, Herbert Howlett, 39, said today he had regained his sight suddenly Tuesday night—less than 48 hours after being released from prison because he was blind. He had served about half of a five-year prison sentence.

$200,000,000 Outlay In Year For Health Of Canadians

HALIFAX (CP)—Canadian governments will spend $200,000,000 on public health and hospital care this year, Health Minister Martin told the Canadian Medical Association today in a speech at the body's meeting. He said the provinces have done a "superb" job in carrying the main burden of public-health care while the national health program—under which 3,000 provincial projects totaling $37,000,000 already have been approved—is opening "new and exciting possibilities of advances for them."

He detailed four major steps now being taken to clear the way for health progress in the years ahead:

1. Provincial health surveys and new sickness surveys which will supply an "exact knowledge" of the public-health position and of anticipated requirements.
2. Provision of more hospital accommodation and more and better equipped clinics. Some 21,000 of the additional 40,000 hospital beds required by 1953

Relic Of Early Man In Mountain Caves Of Iraq

Living 20,000 Years Before Stone Age Findings May Reveal Trace Of First Human

By MUSA HABIB

BAGHDAD (AP)—Archaeologists have discovered in Iraq mountain caves relics of what may be the first man. They estimate he lived 20,000 years before the Stone Age.

The annual report of the Iraq Department of Antiquities has just revealed the discoveries of a United States expedition, led by Dr. Henry Field of Harvard University.

The expedition worked in "immensely dark" caves crammed with "rough windings and formidable stalactites and stalagmites." The caves were in the Baradost mountains north of Kirkuk, in north central Iraq.

The report said there were "findings on the first man of the fifth millennium" before Christ (5,000-4,000 B.C.). These are similar to those uncovered at the scattered hills of plains between Kirkuk and Mosul (farther north), indicating that one similar people lived in the mountains and plains of Iraq at that remote time. It was a period when man sought shelter from the cold in caves (the fourth ice age).

The antiquities department also disclosed discoveries of two other expeditions, one American and one British. All three expeditions have halted excavations for the summer.

A joint expedition of the University of Chicago and the University of Pennsylvania worked at the sacred Sumerian town of Nippur, north of Baghdad. A British School of Archaeology expedition investigated the oldest known Assyrian capital, Calah, east of Mosul.

During six months the former group excavated a collection of temples surrounding Nippur. Six temples built one atop the other during different ages were found at one place. They go back from the Acadian period to the final reign of the Assyrians over Babylon, from 2,500 to 600 B.C.

The British expedition concentrated on the palace of Ashur Naser Pahl III, some finds dating to the first millennium B.C. They found relics of "Great material and scientific value." The expedition also found a 3,000-year-old observatory.

Man Waits Gallows, Must Pay Alimony

NEW YORK (AP)—A man sentenced to die in Sing Sing's electric chair has been ordered to pay alimony.

Camillo Leyra Jr., convicted of the hammer slaying of his aged parents last January, was ordered by the State Supreme Court to pay his former wife, Lillian Leyra, $30 a week. They were divorced in 1939.

The court noted that Leyra's assets include $15,000 worth of machinery and a $15,000 interest in his parents' estate, although his "probability of earning is practically nil."

Leyra was sentenced to die July 2, but a mandatory review by the Court of Appeals will delay the execution.

March Trade Shows Gain

There was an increase in the value of exports and imports through B.C. customs ports in March, the provincial department of trade and industry announced today.

The exports in the month amounted to $37,420,712, compared to $31,491,085 in February and $33,062,597 in January.

Imports totaled $23,123,970 in March, compared to $17,167,208 in February and $12,640,446 in January.

Totals for the three months are $101,974,394 exports and $52,931,624 imports.

New Secrets Act Increases Penalty

Maximum To Be 14 Years And Terms Will Be Given Much Wider Application

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons moved Thursday to strengthen Canada's anti-spy laws.

With Opposition members urging the government to take even wider powers, the chamber adopted a bill amending the Official Secrets Act, to double the penalty for espionage, boosting it from seven to 14 years' imprisonment, and empower firm steps against Canadians who commit treason.

It gives the government power to prosecute anyone owing allegiance to Canada—including any alien in this country for a short period—and to deal with Canadians who disclose official secrets even when beyond this country's boundaries.

Five members suggested the legislation did not go far enough. They were John Diefenbaker

(P.C.-Lake Centre), Donald Fleming (P.C.-Eglinton), E. D. Fulton (P.C.-Kamloops), Alistair Stewart (C.C.F.-Winnipeg North) and Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L. Portneuf).

Justice Minister Garson said the government had decided to make it an offence to disclose secret information outside of Canada.

It now would be considered an offence if the disclosure was made by a Canadian citizen or by a person who obtained the secret while he owed allegiance to Canada. Under the law, an alien owes allegiance while he is within the realm of Canada—unless he is protected by diplomatic immunity.

Mr. Diefenbaker urged the government to take action against "some" Canadians who he said had gone to Moscow to study at the international Lenin school, which had "world disruption" as its main object. While protected by a Canadian passport they were preparing themselves to "commit revolution" in Canada.

Mr. Garson said the government can and will prosecute persons who go to Moscow and disclose secret information, whether or not they are Canadians. But it could do this only if it had evidence against them.

Mr. Fleming termed the legislation "a little and too late."

Dr. Gauthier felt there should be a crusade against the Red doctrine in which all like-minded persons could take part.

SUGGEST APPEALS

Mr. Fulton and Mr. Stewart suggested the government appoint a board to which civil servants dismissed because their loyalty was questioned could appeal.

Introducing the citizenship changes, Mr. Harris promised to study a suggestion by Howard Green (P.C.-Vancouver-Quadra) that Canadians of Japanese origin who fought with Japan against the Allies in the Second World War be stripped of their Canadian citizenship.

Among other things, the bill enables Canadian women who lost their citizenship through marriage to an alien prior to Jan. 1, 1947, to regain it. Canadians who became naturalized in a foreign land and later returned to Canada for good will be able to regain their citizenship after one year.

Shows Superiority Of Men

White Cane Club member, Jack Miller, backs up baby-sitting argument with striking demonstration of how to handle child correctly.

Men Best Baby Sitters, Demonstration Proves It

By BOB HUTCHISON

Members of the White Cane Club may be blind but the men of the club think they can see why men make better baby sitters than women.

Four of the members engaged in an informal debate Wednesday afternoon at the Prince Robert House.

It was resolved that men make better baby sitters than women. Jack Miller and Q. Finlay took the affirmative.

Mrs. H. Duck and Mrs. M. Leigh took the negative.

A doll was supplied for the purpose of demonstration.

There was no official verdict as judges had not been appointed, but the men flipped a diaper and claimed the decision.

Jack Miller was the first speaker on the affirmative. He began by charging that girl baby sitters were always asking their friends in, and holding parties at their employers' houses. He also claimed they ran up the phone bill and ate all the food in the house.

Mr. Miller, as proof of his ability, gave a practical demonstration of the proper method of changing diapers, using the doll as a dummy.

After folding the diaper correctly and carefully pulling out a large safety pin from his vest, he triumphantly picked the doll up to show the seeing part of the audience. Later one of the feminine members of the club commented on the fine job of changing the doll, but noted that Mr. Finlay had neglected to remove the diaper the doll was wearing, which was presumably in a questionable condition.

The next speaker was Mrs. M. Leigh. She pointed out that only women have a motherly instinct; only women can be mothers.

The audience were inclined to agree with her on this point.

She felt that the only babies men were capable of sitting with were in the 16-year-old bracket.

This point registered approval among the male section of the audience.

Mrs. Leigh's argument was followed by Mr. Finlay's. He claimed that male sitters could achieve the most success with babies from 40 to 50 years old.

"I know, I've had experience," he said.

He outlined three age ranges and told how to handle them. "From 15 to 16 years old, babies need to be handled with care, from 20 to 25, they need to be treated rough, but the older ones need care. They need a lot of cuddling," he said.

NOT UNDER EIGHTEEN

The next speaker for the negative was Mrs. H. Duck. She said that in her day they never had baby sitters but she would prefer a woman sitter if she ever needed one. "Men can't handle any babies under 18 years old," Mrs. Duck said.

The debate had no rebuttal and was closed by a short comment by the chairman, Mr. Turner. The meeting was then turned over to the club president, Mrs. E. Watling.

Peacetime Draft In U.S. To Be Extended 3 Years

Senate Shouts Approval As Military Measures Sent To Truman For Signing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The peacetime draft in the United States is just about set to run on for two or three more years.

It was due to expire at midnight tonight, but Congress Thursday approved a stop-gap bill providing a 15-day extension.

As the bill was sped to President Truman for his signature, the Senate shouted its approval of a three-year draft-law extension after beating down a racial-segregation plan for the armed forces.

There remain some differences between the Senate and House bills to be ironed out. For one thing, the House bill would extend the draft two years, not three.

Senator Richard Russell, Dem., Ga., who lost 42 to 29 an earlier attempt to let any non-commissioned or drafted person request service only with persons "of his own race," offered a modified proposal.

It would have required approval by a majority of all men enlisting or drafted in three-fourths of the states during the next six months or would have been ineffective. The Senate rejected it 45 to 27.

Successful Year Noted By Baptists

An encouraging picture of the past year's activities of Baptist Churches in the province was presented in annual report of trustees' report Thursday by Rev. Theo Gibson of Nelson, secretary, at the 53rd annual convention of the Baptist Churches of B.C. here.

Although details and figures were not available, the finances were said by W. C. Atherton, treasurer, to be in "first-class shape."

Rev. A. C. Hamill of New Westminster introduced the new Baptist pastors to the province during the past year, to the convention delegates.

The chapel period was directed by Rev. W. C. Smalley, D.D., retiring general secretary after 21 years' service on the board.

Rev. O. E. Daniel of West Point Grey, Vancouver, is presiding at the convention.

HEANEYS GET BIG CHANCE AGAINST SCOTS SATURDAY

Heaney's youthful Victoria and District League soccer eleven could become the giant killers of coast football Saturday afternoon at Macdonald Park if they could but defeat St. Andrews in their Province Cup semifinal.

Few observers give the locals much of a chance against the Coast League champions, but others point to the fact that Heaney's can shoot the works as they have nothing at stake in this, their first big match.

The match promises to be one of the fastest of the season as Heaney's are young and rugged, while St. Andrews' always put on a good exhibition.

Game time is 2:30.

Feller Within One Of 200 Mound Wins

Does Bobby Feller still have it? The answer seems to be "yes."

Even in his balmy days, the Cleveland Indian ace had trouble beating New York. Now he's whipped the Yankees twice in a row.

So-Su-Rapid Robert rode home yesterday on five Tribe homers off the Yanks' lefty Joe Ostrowski, late of St. Louis Browns. The 6 to 2 victory was No. 199 for Feller. One more and he'll be the only active major leaguer in the 200 club.

With Feller's help, the surging Indians' American League pennant stock is booming. Only five and a half games back, they figure to gain while Detroit and New York play an important four-game series opening today.

Cleveland, winning eight of nine, is the hottest club in the league. Yesterday, Jim Hogan and Luke Easter each hit two homers and Ray Boone hit another. For the Yankees Joe DiMaggio nicked Feller for his 13th and big John Mize his first.

Washington continued to embarrass the Tigers as Bob Kuzava threw a six-hitter for a 5 to 2 decision. Despite the defeat, Detroit clung to its one-game lead because the Yankees lost.

Irv Noren paced the Washington 13th blast with a double and two singles.

O'NEILL TAKES OVER

With manager Joe McCarthy in Buffalo, N.Y., for a rest and physical check-up, Boston Red Sox dropped another game to Chicago 4 to 2. Steve O'Neill, a coach under McCarthy, took over as acting manager, perhaps for some time to come.

Philadelphia Athletics pounded four St. Louis pitchers for 15 hits and an 8 to 4 victory. Sam Chapman got a two-run homer for Philadelphia and Cherman Lollar did the same for the Browns.

Larry Jansen and Dave Kosio, two New York Giant shutout pitchers, juggled the National League standings: Jansen and Kosio blanked St. Louis 3 to 0 and 5 to 0, dropping the Cardinals from a first-place tie to third.

As Brooklyn also lost to Cincinnati 9 to 5, Philadelphia Phils sneaked into second place, a half game out of first, by dumping Pittsburgh 7 to 4.

Jansen stretched his string of consecutive scoreless innings to 10.

GAME POSTPONED

Last night's Lower Island Amateur Baseball League game between Eagles and Capitals was postponed due to heavy showers during the day which made ground conditions at Athletic Park unplayable.

SNEAD MAKES PRACTICE PAY OFF

Raises Ire Of Fellow Players By Capturing Medal In P.G.A.

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Sam Snead, noted among his colleagues as thrifty, today begins defence of his United States Professional Golfers' Association crown jingling $250 as the meet's medalist.

Never since the birth of the P.G.A. tournament in 1919 has a defending champion, automatically exempt from the 36-hole qualifying round, condescended to compete for the sake of picking up extra cash. That is, until Snead, who tops the money winners with more than $21,000 and, according to the pro pack, still has every cent of it, came along.

But you can't take anything away from the West Virginia hillbilly—either a penny or a golf shot. He's got both.

Yesterday over the tough 7,032-yard course his lethal chip shots, which left him with only 25 putts for the round, supported a dazzling 68.

This four-under-par effort, matching the competitive course record set by wild Bill Mehlhorn and the late Mac Smith in the 1926 U.S. Open, gave him a 36-hole total of 140 and medalist honors.

When Snead returned to the clubhouse and ducked out without even taking a shower, Lawson Little of the P.G.A. tournament committee managed to tell him: "You won't even let one of us guys try for the medalist prize—you've got to go whole hog."

OTHER PROS UPSET

Most of the pros are either a little irked or a little jealous of Snead's ability to save shots and cash at the same time. Little was merely expressing a sentiment which may have been facetious originally but which has grown into a legend finally climaxed on the Scioto course.

If it hadn't been for Snead, Al Brooch of Garden City, N.Y., would be $250 richer today.

The 39-year-old Brooch came in with a 70 for 142. But he had to be content as runner-up medalist, worth nothing.

Snead today faces the challenge of the medalist jinx. Only three times has the medalist gone on to win. Olin Dutra did it in 1932 and Walter Hagen in 1924 and 1926.

In today's first round Snead faces an imposing opponent, Sam Byrd. The former New York Yankee outfielder lost to Byron Nelson 4 and 3 in the 1945 finals. He has not done much since.

Interschool Softball Champions

Defeating North Ward 12 to 3 in the finals Margaret Jenkins won the Greater Victoria senior girls' interschool softball crown. From left to right: front row, Rona Macmurchie, coach; Shirley Bovan, Judy Mangin, Irene Davidson, Anne Redford, Marion Keddie, W. H. Muncy, principal; middle row, Roberta Hammon, Ruth Orton, Pam Edens, Judy Selwood, Sara Robertson; back row, Florence Hall, Joann Kerr, Carol Dyson, Margaret Colbourne.

Senior A Softball Race Tightens As League-Leading Tiremen Falter

The senior A men's softball race which for a time threatened to become a walkaway for Douglas Tire now is tighter than a bowstring with only four games separating the two bottom-place clubs from the league leaders.

True, Tiremen still head the pack but their once seemingly insurmountable lead has now been shaved to two games and the tire dealers are no longer the feared aggregation they once were.

Chinese Students have been giving the leaders the most trouble but the addition of Bud Ross to the pitching staff of Forest Products rates the lumbermen as a contender from here on in.

No dates have yet been set for the opening games in the B.C. zone series but unless Tiremen can snap out of their lethargy they are liable to find themselves on the outside looking in as they were last year.

As for the league race every game now has an important bearing on the standings. Tonight for example Brentwood Aces can move up into a tie with Students for second place behind the Tiremen when they meet Forest Products at Central Park at 6:30.

However, a victory for the timber nine will advance them into fourth spot only half a game behind the suburbanites.

Seattle Whips Portland In Overtime Tilt

The Coast League comes up with a brand new set of heroes today, with Oakland's Artie Wilson probably the most stalwart of the bunch.

Whether the Oakland shortstop's game winning triple in the 13th inning surpassed in portent the game winning double of Seattle's Ted Davis or the sterling relief job of Hollywood's Ken Lehman is a matter of sectional conjecture.

No less spectacular was last night's other extra inning affair, at Portland. Seattle licked the Beavers, 6 to 5, in that one when the foresaid Mr. Davis walloped a two-bagger in the 12th frame to end it.

His victim was Lyman Linde, pressed into service in the sixth inning. George Vico, a Portland castoff, started off the 12th with double No. 1. That set it up for Davis, who had batted in two Seattle runs earlier.

The Ryder Cuppers hastily embarked for home last year when the British pound suddenly was devaluated from $4.00 to $2.80—even though some of them had jumped the gun and obtained the cut rate in the United States before they went over there.

The British didn't suspend any of them, when they pulled out of several British tournaments, but the P.G.A. meeting behind locked doors, is earing a controversy over the Ryder Cupper expenses and discussing their failure to keep British commitments.

NEW YORK—Caroline Flore, 142, New York, stopped Al (Bozo) Constantino, 146%, New York (7).

BAYS OUT TO REPEAT OVER JOKERS

The league-leading Jokers of the Senior B Lacrosse League face a stiff test tonight at the Memorial Arena when they tangle with the runner-up Foul Bay unit in the second game of a double bill at 9.

The Bays are the only club to hold a decision over the Jokers this season, winning 10 to 1 in the last game between the two clubs.

Both teams were recently forced into overtime before disposing of Tillicum's, so a close battle is forecast.

In the curtain raiser at 7:30, the third-place Tillicum's will attempt to consolidate their position at the expense of the winless Navy team.

Meanwhile, dogs are getting more than their usual share of publicity during league games. There are seldom less than a dozen canines around and some of these have been getting rather bold of late.

An incident quite amusing to the fans but not to the Students' centrefielder took place Wednesday night when an Alsatian decided a glove would be a suitable gift for his master and made off with the prized possession much to the chagrin of the owner. All ended well, however, the glove being recovered.

Red's Replace North Saanich As Loop Leaders

North Saanich last night dropped out of first place in the Women's Softball League and Red's Service moved into the top spot as the garage dealers trimmed the suburban nine 10 to 3 at Sidney.

The defeat was the second straight for North Saanich and drops them into third place in the six-team circuit.

Red's scored all their runs in the first three innings, taking advantage of five North Saanich errors.

Dora Jones allowed five hits in chalking up the victory. Agnes Pearson was the loser.

Tonight at lower Central Topers will meet Adverts.

Short scores follow:

Red's Service	10	7	1
North Saanich	3	5	5

Dora Jones and Jan Zaruk; Agnes Pearson and Audrey Pearson.

MARION STEPS DOWN

Names Reese No. 1 National Shortstop

NEW YORK (UP)—Marty Marion of the St. Louis Cardinals, the National League's number one shortstop in his day, formally passed over that title today to Brooklyn's Pee Wee Reese.

"I've played against Reese a long time," declared the spindly, 32-year-old Redbird, "and I'm convinced he's the best shortstop in the league today."

"He covers more ground than anyone in the infield, he's a smart base-runner and don't be fooled by his tiny batting average up to now. He's still a good hitter and he's got two-thirds of a season left to prove it."

Marion made no attempt to compare Reese with the best shortstops in the American League.

"Frankly," he confessed, "all I know about the shortstops in the other league is what I see of them in spring training or what I read about them in the newspapers.

"If I was forced to make a selection, though, I would have to pick little Philip (Rizzuto) of the New York Yankees. He sure can go get 'em!"

Shamrocks Outplay Adanacs In Defeat

Lose In Final Minute On Desperation Shot

Victoria Shamrocks still haven't won a lacrosse game in Queen's Park, New Westminster, the club dropping a heart-breaking 9 to 8 decision to the Adanacs last night.

On the night's play the Shamrocks should have won. They outshot the A's 85 to 25 and never trailed by more than two goals in a game that was tied up on six different occasions.

The winning goal came from the stick of Jack Northup, the league's leading scorer, with only 54 seconds remaining in the game and was a long bounce shot which caught the upper corner of the net.

Adanacs led 2 to 1 at the end of the first period and increased their margin to 3 to 1 early in the second stanza. But from that point on the game was a thriller all the way.

Shamrocks rallied to knot the count at 3 to 3 and by half time were all square with the A's at 4 to 4.

SCORES FAIR

Two goals by Art Green gave the Shamrocks a 6 to 5 edge in the third period but the A's tied it up again before the breather.

Fred Ranson, continuing his recent scoring pace, counted his second goal of the night at 8:32 of the final period to put the Rocks on top again, but Reo Jerome once more put the A's on even terms shortly after the 12-minute mark.

A penalty to Adanacs' Ralph Douglas with 90 seconds left were looking for but Andy O'Connell nullified the extra-man advantage 30 seconds later when he dropped Northup to the floor with a check to the head.

Shortly after the Shamrock president was waved to the penalty box Northup let go with his desperation shot which beat Buzz Long cleanly.

Long, playing his first full game in the Shamrocks nets as a replacement for the injured Bill Andrews, was spectacular at times in stopping 16 shots.

Ranson and Green, each with two goals, set the scoring pace, while Ferguson and Ed Popham also picked up two scoring points.

Shamrocks' next game is against the Richmond-Kerrisdale entry at Kerrisdale Wednesday night, and their next home game here on Friday night against the Burrards.

Mooney's Edge Vets In Ninth

A single by Les Irwin in the last half of the ninth inning last night accounted for the winning run as Mooney's defeated Army, Navy and Air Force Vets, 9 to 8, in a senior B men's softball game at Central Park.

By virtue of their victory, Mooney's moved into fifth place in the league standings.

NEW YORK—Paddy DeMarco, 136%, New York, outpointed Ray Edwards, 127%, New York (10).

LOFTHOUSE SCORING STAR FOR ENGLAND

Fires Four Goals In Easy Victory Over Swedish Club

MONTREAL (BUP)—England's international soccer team overwhelmed the Swedish Jonkopping eleven 7 to 1 last night in an exhibition game before 10,000 fans.

Star of the game was England's centre forward Nat Lofthouse who racked up four goals.

The Britons took a 5 to 1 lead in the first half, with three of their goals from the boot of Lofthouse.

The centre-forward netted his fourth late in the second half when he booted home a 40-yard drive. Swedish centre-half Allan Brulling added to the English team's score when he miscued a kick past his own goalkeeper. Other English scorers were Johnny Hancock and Johnny Sewell.

Sweden scored their only goal in the first half when centre Carl Simonsson converted a penalty called on English centre-half Reg Flewin.

FROM THE FANSTAND

By PETE SALLAWAY, Times Sports Editor

After my first glimpse of seven-man lacrosse Wednesday night, as our Shamrocks spanked the pants off the Salmonbellies, I'll cast my vote in favor of the six-man version. All that extra player does is to slow up the tempo of the game, create more jamming in front of the nets, and bring about a lot of cheap goals with the net-minders having their vision blocked time after time.

Wednesday night, when each team had a player in the penalty box, the game immediately speeded up and as far as this writer is concerned provided much better entertainment. I can easily see where the seven-man game works a hardship on the Shamrocks. Their superior condition and speed no longer provides them with any great advantage. The six-man style was introduced at the start of the season with the object of speeding up the game. Now that speed has been sacrificed to meet the wishes of certain mainland clubs—notably the Canadian champion Burrards.

Len Scott No Push-over

Sitting above the bench of the Salmonbellies listened in on a wisecrack by one of the visiting players. For five minutes this little fellow (he must have weighed all of 125 pounds soaking wet) had been checking rugged Len Scott. As he dropped wearily on the bench his remark was: "Jeez, that guy is solid."

Both Tommy Druce and Andy Ovcharik are going to prove valuable additions to the Shamrocks. Although a little rusty on their stickhandling they are rugged, can shoot, and need only a couple more games under their belts to get the feel of their sticks. Druce ran out of gas a couple of times through not being in condition after that enforced rest with a broken wrist.

Wrestlers Have Answers

One can find many angles in the proposed shotgun wedding between the International Boxing Club, sometimes known as "one big happy monopoly" and the outfit known as the wrestling "trust." Some see it as merely a threat to Charley Johnston, New York wrestling promoter and head of the recalcitrant boxing managers' guild. Others find significance in Jim Norris' statement: "We are in business to show a profit and wrestling is profitable."

It could also show how far boxing has gone down or how far wrestling has come up. Another angle is that boxing is just about dead. Time and again it has been proven that boxing's popularity rides on the fortunes of the current heavyweight champion. When the sport is blessed with a colorful, active heavyweight king it enjoys its great success at the box office.

Boxing Needs Real Champ

At the present time the game is experiencing one of its low periods. Ezzard Charles, recognized as heavyweight titleholder by the National Boxing Association, is inactive until he gets a clearance in August on a heart condition. In and out Lee Savold holds the British version of the championship. Until such time as the sport comes up with a champion who is prepared to get in the ring and defend his title against all comers, with no strings attached, it will remain in the doldrums. And the return of Joe Louis is certainly not the answer.

Seeded Players Given Scares In Net Tourney

Carl Brand gained the men's singles final and Jack Millidge and Darrell Thompson moved into the semifinals in the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club championships Thursday.

Brand, the defending champion and long one of the ranked players in the city, moved into the final bracket with a three-set 6-4, 6-8, 6-3 triumph over fourth seeded Peter Peacock.

Thompson had a terrific battle on his hands before eliminating Rex Jackson 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, while Millidge was also forced to three sets before disposing of Henri Dessaulles 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

In the Thompson-Jackson tussle Thompson took the first set, after trailing 5 to 3. Then in the second set Jackson spotted Thompson three games before squaring the match.

Millidge also had a close call trailing 4 to 0 in the third set before winning six straight games.

New Haven Will Operate In A.H.L. As An Independent

NEW YORK (CP)—The New Haven team in the American Hockey League will operate next season as an independent organization, it was decided today by the league's board of governors.

New York Rangers of the National Hockey League recently severed connections with the New Haven club, reported to have lost $87,000 last year for the Rangers. New Haven finished fourth in the eastern division of the two-division, 10-team circuit.

An A.H.L. spokesman said that New Haven would operate next season "completely independent" of any N.H.L. team. Its manager and players will be chosen later, he said.

Maurice Podoloff, who presided over the annual business meeting today, said the circuit would function again with eight clubs—five in each division.

Purring Tiger

Baseball is secondary at Yankee Stadium to idle Detroit pitcher Art Houtteman, seen making small talk from the dugout to his fiancée, the comely Shelagh Marie Kelly of Rahway, N.J. On working days the 22-year-old righthander is a big reason why the Tigers are a top contender in the American League pennant race.

McCarthy's Departure From Sox Similar To Quitting Of Yanks

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UP)—A sick and weary Joe McCarthy brooded at his home today while the baseball world wondered whether the man sometimes called "the greatest manager in baseball history" was washed up.

McCarthy's only comment was an evasive, "We'll talk about that later," when asked point-blank if he would return as manager of the Boston Red Sox. He flew home from Chicago last night on a doctor's orders after remaining in his hotel room since Monday with an attack of pleurisy.

"I feel lousy," said the portly 63-year-old manager who guided the New York Yankees to seven world championships and eight American League pennants and twice saw his Red Sox lose the pennant by one game.

McCarthy's only comment was an evasive, "We'll talk about that later," when asked point-blank if he would return as manager of the Boston Red Sox. He flew home from Chicago last night on a doctor's orders after remaining in his hotel room since Monday with an attack of pleurisy.

McCarthy himself has said repeatedly that he wouldn't quit a loser. But the current situation was ominously similar to McCarthy's retirement as manager of the Yankees in 1946. McCarthy left the club on the road then and returned to his home "for a rest." He never resumed command and remained in retirement until the Red Sox induced him to become their manager in 1948.

Mrs. McCarthy is known to have asked Joe to retire many times and it is believed if Joe took the big step it would be in deference to her.

He attempted to brush aside reporters at the airport and swung when a photographer moved his camera within range.

Longacres To Usher In 54 Days Of Racing

SEATTLE (AP)—One dozen horses will draw weights for the $3,000 Renton Handicap, feature race of Saturday's 1950 opening of the Longacres race season of 54 days.

Among them are Irene's Angel, nipped by a nostril in last year's running of the Longacres Mile, and Lucky Valley, the Herb Armstrong colt which rated the top Washington-bred of 1949. Irene's Angel, owned by Mrs. E. M. Bush, was Oregon's leading filly last year.

Flamingo Bell and Menu are to carry the silks of Mrs. A. E. Simpson. C. J. Sebastian has entered Galla Damion. Others entered for the 'cap—several of which are likely to drop out before race time—are Top View, Hy Polly, Little Nip, Rosecraw, Deep Mystery, Chief Command and Fran-Jo-Ker.

EVEN UMPIRE KNOCKED OUT

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Eight baseball players and an umpire were knocked down by a bolt of lightning during a game at the naval air station here Thursday.

All nine were taken to the navy dispensary for examination and released.

Artificial respiration was used to revive the pitcher, a second baseman and a third baseman. The others were out only briefly.

Mack Fines Wyse For Being Absent

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics today fined pitcher Hank Wyse $250 for not being in his hotel room last Saturday night.

Reminded by Philadelphia baseball writers that it was the first time in at least 25 years that he had slapped a penalty on an errant player, the 87-year-old Mack said, "the fine will stick." Wyse was sent back to Philadelphia for treatment for a sore back.

Tacoma Lead Shaved To Half Game; A's Beaten

Though Victoria Athletics dropped another game to the fast-moving Tri-City Braves last night, losing 7 to 3, the most important happening in the Western International League is the apparent collapse of the Tacoma Tigers.

League leaders since the start of the season, the Tigers last night saw their once rosy lead cut to half a game as they were edged 1 to 0 by Bill Bradford and the Yakima Bears.

Bradford outpitched Loust and Carter of the Tigers in chalking up the eight-hit shutout and was aided by three double plays.

The defeat was Tacoma's eighth straight and leaves the club with only half a game in hand over the Bears and eight in front of the sixth place A's. Last night, the cellar-place Vancouver Capilanos are only 10 games out of first place as the league race shows signs of becoming a wide-open affair.

In the league's other contest, Spokane scored two runs in the fourth inning to defeat Wenatchee 2 to 1 and maintain their seventh-place position.

Manager Marty Krug of the A's, who is apparently saving his right-handers for Wenatchee with whom the A's open a four-game series tonight, last night sent Jim Hedgecock to the hill at Tri-City.

SEVEN-RUN RALLY

The slender pitcher got along splendidly for two innings then he slipped into all kinds of trouble in the third as the Braves sent 11 batters to plate and before he could put out the fire had scored all seven of their runs.

Warren Noyes, the fire-balling righthander, came in relief to turn in five hitless and scoreless innings.

An error by the usually reliable Jim Moore on a thrown ball by Joe Kronberg proved to be the deciding point in the game, the Braves scoring an unearned run on the play and adding three more of the tainted variety afterwards.

Veteran Joe Orrell, who went the route for the Braves, held the A's hitless until the fifth inning but weakened in the late stages. However, he was tough in the pinches and worked easily behind his third-inning advantage.

John Hack, recently purchased from Twin Falls, has not yet joined the club, but word is expected from the chunky outfielder today. Al Washburn, an infielder also scheduled to join the local club, has decided not to report.

Australian Living Costs Doubled Since Sept., 1934

Food Prices Up And Despite Control By Government Rents Also Have Risen

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—As in Canada, the cost of living nowadays is uppermost in the minds of most Australians. Official statistics say living costs increased about 60 per cent between September, 1939, and December, 1949. Economists and housewives, however, claim prices generally have doubled.

The reasons for this discrepancy are fairly simple. The government statistics cover only basic items for a comparatively low living standard. Luxury items have increased more than the 60 per cent and, in many cases, the quality of goods has deteriorated. Goods are often in short supply and high-priced substitutes have to be purchased. In addition, rent prices, which the government claims have changed insignificantly, have been boosted by various devices to defeat controls and stand at about a 100-per-cent increase.

HOUSE "EXTRAS"

In 1939, for instance, it was possible to rent a two-bedroom cottage in a Sydney suburb for $1 10s ($4.65) a week. Nominal rent for the same cottage today is unchanged, but "extras" would bring the real price to about $3 10s. With an average wage in the area of $10 to $11, this is slightly more than the accepted North American figure of 25 per cent of income for rent.

Official figures show approximately a 53 per cent increase in food costs. Housewives, however, say the figures are based on basic items subsidized by the government or subject to a price control more theoretical than real. They say the figures take no account of the failure of the price control on meat, nor of the prices of fruit and vegetables, which have trebled.

Representatives of the increased food costs are butter, which now costs 2s 2d (34 cents) per pound compared with 1s 8½d prewar; peas and beans, 5d per pound in 1939, now cost 1s 3d; six pounds of potatoes have gone from 6d to 2s.

Government statistics on clothing show almost 200 per cent increase, but shoppers say it costs nearer four times the 1939 price to dress nowadays, due to inferior quality.

THEATRES DOUBLED

Official figures also allow for a 50 per cent increase in miscellaneous items—transportation, entertainment, medical bills, etc.—Australians again are dubious as to their practicality. Theatre prices have more than doubled, from 1s. 3d. in a suburban cinema to 2s. 9d.; cheap restaurant meals are up to 6s. from 2s. 6d. for a permanent wave, a woman now pays $3.30 for what she paid $1.60 years ago.

Wages have also gone up, but no one is quite sure as to the situation of the standard of living, because of the sceptical view of official cost-of-living statistics.

Unskilled laborers have had their wages doubled to about $9 ($27.90) a week. White-collar workers have increased salaries by about 60 per cent. Wages of from $6.10.0 to $14 now are roughly $10 to $20.

Edmonton Men Like Manicures

EDMONTON (CP)—More and more men are falling in line with women in the professional care of their fingernails, says Edmonton manicurist Ruth Natchak.

Nearly one-third of her clients now are men, she says. Most are business and professional men getting a manicure "for a special occasion."

Dies Of Burns

TORONTO (BUP)—Mary Gertrude Murray, 6, died Wednesday night as the result of burns she received when her clothes caught fire from a candle on the altar of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church.

Slight Limit Set

CLEVELAND (AP)—Except for white bathing suits, Cleveland women can wear just about anything "respectable" they wish on the city's four beaches and nine pools. The white suits, Capt. Hazel Witt of the police women's bureau explained, "will always be out because they tend to become transparent in water."

The Netherlands' clothing industry provides work for 38,000 women and 8,000 men.

Cougar Shot

Shortly after a six-foot female cougar had been spotted near the roadside by a passing motorist on the Sooke Road Wednesday afternoon, it was dead.

Alwyn Trace, 242 Island Highway, saw the mountain lion. He got a rifle and picked up Jim Paton, experienced Langford cougar hunter, and his dog. The trail was quickly found and a few minutes later the cat was shot from a tree—a $20 prize for Trace and Paton.

ONLY CARS WITH "STEP-DOWN" DESIGN

IT'S EASY for you to discover that Hudson offers you the most room... best ride... greatest safety of any car... and more value at less cost!

Your first glance inside shows you that Hudson's exclusive "step-down" design, with its recessed floor, puts at your service new space that is wasted in other cars.

That means seat cushions that are up to 12 inches wider than in cars of far greater outside dimensions... more head room than in any other stock car built today... a spaciousness further increased by the placing of interior hardware and door controls in recessed panels to give extra elbow room!

But Hudson's fabulous roominess is only part of the story!

Hudson's free-flowing, low-built design quickly tells you that the New Hudson has the lowest center of gravity in any Canadian or American automobile; yet there's full road clearance!

As a result, you know instinctively that this thrilling motor car handles more surely, hugs the road more tenaciously, and is therefore Canada's best-riding and safest car! And for added safety, Hudson's Monobilt body-and-frame rides you completely encircled by box-section steel girders.

Yes, Hudson brings you more value at less cost—as a few minutes behind the wheel will disclose. We invite you to visit us soon and discover quickly and completely that "The New Step-Down Ride" is Canada's best and safest ride!

Irish Border Patrols War On Busy Smugglers

Neither Side Uses Firearms In Contraband Running From Eire To Northern Ireland

LONDON (CP)—Irish border patrols are waging an unrelenting, but none-too-successful, battle against smugglers and cattle-rustlers operating along the 350 miles separating the Republic of Ireland from the six Northern Counties.

In the ceaseless war of wits, usually against heavy odds, preventive officers on both sides are daily rounding up an increasing number of "runners" with the value of seized goods mounting into thousands of dollars. But despite the tireless pursuit it is estimated that about 75 per cent of the illicit traffic eludes the hard-pressed customs patrols.

In a game where the stakes are high and the risks great, clashes between the smugglers and law-enforcement agents are a common occurrence.

Only recently when a patrol surprised "runners" trucking hundreds of cases of contraband eggs to the north, along the Monaghan-Tyrone border, the unarmed customs men were suddenly pounced upon and assaulted by "lookouts" who had been lurking in the darkness. The smugglers got away after seriously wounding three of the officers.

AVOID SHOOTING NO FIREARMS USED

This attack led to organized agitation for increased officer protection, particularly on all-night patrols in lonely areas. But hunter and hunted alike are dead against use of firearms.

Said one of the operators after his arrest: "We don't want any bloodshed. If one side starts shooting anything can happen. We are out to make a few pounds, but it is not worth risking dead bodies. Our fellows won't use guns."

But the traffickers can get plenty tough with staves, black-jacks and iron-pipes, when they decide to resist. Usually, however, they abandon their cargoes or submit quietly to arrest when trapped.

While the illegal traffic flows on a large scale in both directions, most of it moves to the north. From there the goods are trans-shipped in large consignments to England, where "black market" prices are high.

The contraband is mainly confined to cigarettes, nylon stockings, eggs, sugar, meat, confectionery and automobile spare parts. To get these through the customs lines, the smugglers resort to novel and cunning tricks.

Many of the larger operators employ scouts to report on the movements of patrols. Another dodge is to send out a fleet of lorries during the night. Several are used as decoys to lure the patrols from the points where the cargo-laden vehicles will make their run across the border.

Five cars carrying contraband were recently seized in a northern town. The smugglers had removed the back seat of one of the cars and under a false top hidden 100 pounds of confectionery and 25,000 cigarettes. In the spare tires of another car officials found 10,000 cigarettes, stripped of their packets, as well as other articles.

A considerable haul, considering cigarettes retail in the English market for about 55 cents a packet of 20.

15,000 PAIRS NYLONS

A light truck, which outwardly appears to be engaged in the legitimate business of transporting carcasses of meat in sacking, was found to contain no fewer than 15,000 pairs of nylon stockings which retail for around $3 a pair in the Northern Counties and even more in England.

Sugar is frequently found in specially-constructed tanks attached to the underframes of cars and trucks or packed in the upholstery.

The heaviest traffic is in eggs, smuggled through in colossal quantities. The operators usually have a farm on the southern side of the frontier, where hens are kept in large numbers. To these points the eggs are delivered and stored until a suitable oppor-

Official Yard Has Shrunk

LONDON (UP)—The British Board of Trade has let out a state secret — the shrink-proof British imperial yard is shrinking.

The imperial yard is a metal alloy bar which comes as near to being 36 inches compared with the metric system as six decimal points can make it.

It was measured at .91439

tunity comes to get them away. What happens to the large quantities of seized contraband? Most of it is offered for sale at public auction with the proceeds going to the state. The cigarettes are distributed to the British army canteens for the troops.

meters in 1898 and nestled in a special vault. But despite precautions it did what it was not supposed to do. It shrank two millionths of its original length.

Officials discovered the secret two years ago, but kept quiet because of the havoc it would cause in measuring circles. The yard is the standard measuring rule of the empire. Now that it's shorter, everything British is correspondingly longer.

Parliament will have to pass a special act before any changes can be made in the yard as it now is—the length of a metal bar which is two millionths of a yard less than a yard.

Make Strawberry Jam this Easy, Short-Boil Way

1 THIS "SURE-RESULTS" RECIPE WILL SAVE TWO-THIRDS OF YOUR TIME

Crush thoroughly 2 quarts of fully ripe berries. (Use ripe fruit, not the under-ripe fruit called for in old-fashioned recipes.) Measure 4 cups of the crushed fruit and 7 cups of sugar into large saucepan. Mix well. Bring to full rolling boil over high heat. Stir constantly before and while boiling.

2 BOIL MIXTURE ONE MINUTE ONLY KEEP FRESH FLAVOR AND COLOR

Here's where you save time and work! BOIL HARD ONE MINUTE BY THE CLOCK! (This short boil retains the luscious taste and lovely color of the fresh fruit.) Remove from heat. Stir in half-bottle of CERTO Fruit Pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit.

3 YOU'LL GET 50% MORE JAM FROM SAME AMOUNT OF FRUIT

Because you don't have to "boil down" your fruit to make it set, very little juice wastes away in steam. You'll have about 10 glasses to ladle and paraffin instead of the 6 to be expected from old-fashioned long-boil recipes. With CERTO you average 50% MORE jam from the same amount of fruit.

4 NO GUESS WORK. FOR SURE RESULTS FOLLOW SIMPLE DIRECTIONS EXACTLY

With CERTO you get a booklet of 78 kitchen-tested recipes... a separate one for each fruit since different fruits need different handling. Follow the simple directions exactly and you'll have bright, sparkling, better-tasting jams and jellies whatever fruit you use. Even beginners can be sure of results with CERTO.

The Truth About Tooth Decay

Science has proved that much of the decay that makes cavities is caused by acid-producing bacteria... formed by tiny food particles which remain on the teeth after eating.

To prevent acid-producing bacteria from attacking the teeth, keep your teeth clean by brushing them immediately after meals.

Pepsodent with Irium gives you the greatest cleansing action you can get. The surest way to fight tooth decay is to use Pepsodent immediately after eating. Pepsodent gives you the cleanest teeth and when teeth are cleanest they are safest from decay.

M.P. Suggests Doukhobors Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—Granting of the franchise to some of Canada's Doukhobors was suggested to the Commons elections committee Thursday. ***

H. W. Herridge (C.C.F., Kootenay East), who has about 10,000 Doukhobors in his riding, said the right to vote should be extended to those members of the sect who assume their responsibilities as citizens. ***

The committee took no action on the proposal, brought up in the late stages of its last meeting of the parliamentary session, but it was decided to study the problem during the recess and take it up again next session. ***

Doukhobors in British Columbia may not vote in provincial elections. A B.C. provincial law bars from voting all descendants of the original Doukhobor settlers in perpetuity. ***

Mr. Herridge's proposal met with agreement from J. L. MacDougall (L. Vancouver-Burrard) though he advised delaying action because of the difficulty of the problem. ***

Judy Coplon Asks New Trial; Claims Evidence Outlaw

WASHINGTON (UP)—Former government employee Judith Coplon is seeking a new trial on grounds her espionage conviction here was based on inadmissible evidence gained from wire tapping. ***

Arguments were presented before Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves, who presided at her two-month trial last spring. The petite brunette has been convicted both here and in New York of stealing government secrets when she worked for the Justice Department. She has appealed both convictions and is free on $40,000 bond. ***

Valentin A. Gubichev, former Soviet engineer who was arrested as a co-conspirator and was a co-defendant in the New York trial, has been deported to Russia. The wire tapping issue came up in New York but Judge Sylvester J. Ryan dismissed it. The U.S. court of appeals has delayed hearing Miss Coplon's case until that question is disposed of here. ***

After her New York trial, Miss Coplon married one of her attorneys, Albert H. Socolov. Velvet is believed to have been originated in China. ***

Truth Taken Back To Red Zone After Short 'Holiday In Heaven'

By DAVID S. BOYER

BERLIN (NEA)—Sixteen-year-old Max Bruener (which is not really his name), from Russia's Communist Germany, took a forbidden holiday in heaven—and then he sneaked back home behind the Iron Curtain, determined to tell the truth about Western Germany.

Max was one of 500,000 members of the Russian-Zone Free German Youth organization (the F.D.J.) who staged a week-long Communist rally in the eastern sector of Berlin. He was one of several who defied Communist police orders not to enter the Allied sectors of the city.

One day soon he may add his name to the ever-growing list of F.D.J.'ers who escape to the west for good. Because, as Max put it himself, "I know what's going on now."

Max came to Berlin "because I wanted to find out for myself why the police had forbidden F.D.J.'ers to see West Berlin."

For five days, Max successfully evaded Communist police lines, but not without being arrested, scolded, threatened.

Once in the Allied sectors, Max, penniless, could do nothing but roam the streets. He had to clutch empty fists in his trouser pockets as he gaped at the fruit, the candy, the meat and the ice cream on sale everywhere. His stomach stayed empty, but his heart grew full.

When he went back at night to his daily ration of a half pound of black bread and the same of sausage, he carried with him visions of a better world.

Then, on the fifth day, Max was no longer broke. We picked him up and showed him Berlin in style.

WAS HEAD

At the auto show, he was a hero. The Germans were delighted at Max's temporary escape from the Iron Curtain. But they insisted his picture be taken from behind. They knew what would happen if he were ever identified back home.

"Can anybody go into the cafes?" Max asked. In his city of nearly 200,000, he said, only Russians are allowed in the one decent cafe six days a week.

On the seventh, only wealthy Germans and Communist functionaries could afford it.

As he lapped up chocolate sundaes at a sidewalk table at Cafe Wien, Max got the answer.

Suddenly, Max was confronted by a Communist party organizer, an F.D.J. leader checking up on runaway children. The party man managed to get out about 10 words of abuse. Then he was surrounded by 50 West Germans. SAVED FROM MAULING

West police saved the Communist from a bad mauling. They warned him and released him. Moments later, two more runaway F.D.J.'ers slipped into Cafe Wien and approached Max.

"For heaven's sake, be careful," they whispered. "The place is full of spies!"

"I know what I'm doing," Max replied. "You saw what happened. That incident convinced me. The West Germans don't hate us. They just hate the Communist system. I know who's been telling the lies, and I'm out to spread a little truth."

Max said he'd have to be very careful about whom he spoke the truth to behind the Iron Curtain. But he said he would speak.

Of 500,000 F.D.J.'ers in Berlin, only a handful had Max's experience. Their voices will be small against those who stayed behind the police lines and listened to Communist stories about the capitalist evils across the street.

Britain Expects To Have A-Plant Working In 1955

Harwell Director Makes Statement As Newspapermen Visit Laboratory

HARWELL, Eng. (AP)—Sir John Cockcroft, director of the giant new Harwell atom research laboratory, says Britain may have a practical atomic power plant in "four or five years."

He revealed Thursday that researchers at Harwell, with this goal in view, are trying to figure out new ways to produce plutonium—atom bomb ingredient—faster and more efficiently.

He said his scientists already have worked out a new way of getting uranium out of uranium ore more economically.

The vast Harwell laboratory was thrown open to the press for the first time Thursday. Top atom scientists showed western correspondents—no Russians or east Europeans were invited—their 110-inch underground cyclotron, their house-high atomic pile and many of their formerly secret processes. Few key facts or figures were disclosed, however.

The atomic pile is a 40-foot stack of lavender-painted graphite blocks. Uranium slugs are thrust through six-inch-square ports on both sides and cold-air ducts keep the temperature down.

Harwell's so-called "hot lab" where products of the atomic pile are sorted, was engaged in the separation of a quantity of uranium from the plutonium produced in the pile the day before.

Scientists guided the process with the aid of mirrors from behind a four-inch wall of lead bricks.

Windsor Story Untrue, Says London Editor

TORONTO (CP)—Allan Pitt Robbins, editor of The Times of London, said Thursday the account of the abdication given by the Duke of Windsor in his memoirs is not a true picture of what happened.

Mr. Robbins, addressing the Empire Club here, took exception to the Duke's portrayal of Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister of Britain during the abdication period, and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

"Mr. Baldwin had a real affection for the monarch, as he called him in those days. He hoped and believed that he could persuade the Duke to change his mind. . . . He told me once there was a time when his (Baldwin) loved him almost like his own son, which doesn't sound like the man described in the book which is now issued," he said.

No Money For Ducharme Appeal Says Wismer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Frederick Roger Ducharme apparently has lost his last fight against death on the gallows June 30 for the slaying of Blanche Fern Fisher. Dugald McAlpine, counsel for the condemned man, said he had been advised by the Attorney-General's department at Victoria the government will not grant money for an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Ducharme was convicted March 22 of the murder of Miss Fisher, a 45-year-old department store employee whose body was found in False Creek here Nov. 9.

Nine days ago the B.C. Court of Appeal upheld the conviction, dismissing Ducharme's appeal, based on the contention that the trial judge had misdirected the jury.

"It looks as though my client will not have a chance to appeal to the higher court," Mr. McAlpine said. "The man is destitute. I've recommended a new appeal. If the government won't pay the costs, this man is, in effect, being deprived of the right to appeal."

He said Ducharme is anxious for a new appeal and that he is investigating some "new information" which may throw some light on the murder, which Ducharme has denied.

Police Educate Cyclists To Cut Down Accidents

Steadily increasing highway and street auto traffic has made hazardous the once-leisurely sport of bicycle riding and the police are seeking to educate bike riders on safety driving to avert accidents.

During the year in this area there are many bike riders in accidents, chiefly because rules of the road are not observed.

Police Chief John Blackstock of Victoria points out there are just as many adults riding bicycles today with the same disregard for traffic rules as the young people shown in the picture.

Bicycle riders should remember it is not always the motorist's fault when his or her car runs into them.

Plenty of youngsters wheeling around the streets do not realize they risk injury and death by stunts, careless riding and failure to give the proper signals, police warn.

It is the belief of traffic accident investigation officers that parents must take the initiative in counseling children on traffic safety to avert death and injury by stunting and carelessness.

Many In Victoria Recall Excitement Of Relief Of Mafeking 50 Years Ago

News of the relief of Mafeking which burst on the English-speaking world 50 years ago and caused almost as much rejoicing as the end of the South African War occasioned two years later is well remembered by a number of Boer War veterans in Victoria.

After 217 days of isolation the Bechuanaland town with its little band of defenders headed by Col. R. S. S. Baden-Powell, who later reached the rank of lieutenant-general and was honored by knighthood, was relieved by a relieving column on May 17, 1900. During the siege soldiers and civilians were reduced to eating horseflesh.

ENDED ANXIETY

In Canada, news of the success at Mafeking ended anxiety that had been felt for the safety of "C" Battery of the Canadian Field Artillery, unheard of for five weeks during the heat of the campaign.

The "lost gunners," transported from Capetown up the coast to Beira, Portuguese East Africa, reached Mafeking in time to take part in the final onslaught. They had made a rail and road trek of 800 miles through jungle and desert.

Quebec Citizen Heads Rotary

DETROIT (CP)—Ideals without action are almost as fruitless as action without ideals, Arthur Lagueux of Quebec city, president-elect of Rotary International said today.

Mr. Lagueux, in an address at the closing session of the 41st annual Rotary International convention here, said "we must harness the power of our idealism if we are to turn the wheels of our better tomorrows."

Mr. Lagueux, 48-year-old president of the investment firm of Lagueux and DesRochers, was elected president of the international service club last Monday. He has been a member since 1934.

The first shots of the South African War were fired in a Boer attack on an armored train a few miles south of Mafeking. For most purposes, the town was cut off from relief from that day.

ENDED ORGANIZED RESISTANCE

June 5, three weeks after the relief of the town, Pretoria was captured and organized resistance was at an end, although two years of almost unprecedented partisan warfare took place before peace was ratified at Pretoria May 31, 1902.

In defending Mafeking, Baden-Powell, who died Jan. 8, 1941, had command of some 1,000 fighting men, composed of British irregulars, police and the civic guard. Opposite him was the Boer general Cronje, with a force of more than 2,000.

The situation in Mafeking was getting desperate and British Imperial and colonial troops were dispatched to the aid of the garrison. Guns were imperative if the column were to rout the larger Boer forces. It was impossible to move guns from the main theatre of war, south and east of Mafeking, and it was decided to use the Canadian battery.

Permission was obtained from neutral Portugal for passage of the force through Portuguese East Africa. The Canadian battery and a contingent of Australian mounted infantry were quietly shipped 900 miles up the coast to Beira. The force then made its long trek to just above Mafeking, in the rear of the enemy lines.

ENDED SIEGE

The guns were pushed by hand into a nearby field and the battery got its first taste of real war by a shell bursting right in front of it," says a contemporary account of the May 16 battle. "They were soon subjected to an enfilading fire from guns, pom-poms and rifles. . . . They soon located the Boer guns and had the satisfaction of seeing the enemy fleeing from its position."

The next day, May 17, 1900, the siege was at an end.

The guns were only in action three hours, but had materially helped the victory. Lord Roberts, the commander-in-chief, said the battery did "essential work . . . after a march of incredible rapidity." A Canadian historian remarks that the brief engagement "was worth the 10,000 miles it (the battery) had taken by land and sea."

THE CORPORATION OF THE DISTRICT OF SAANICH NOTICE TO WATER USERS REVISED REGULATIONS

In accordance with Clause 2 of By-law No. 742 as amended by By-law No. 835, the following regulations permitting the use of water for gardening purposes have been approved by the Municipal Council and are effective IMMEDIATELY, replacing any previous regulations:

- Properties having an even house number or situated on the north or west side of a street are permitted to use water for garden purposes on even numbered days ONLY, i.e., June 24th, June 26th, June 28th, etc., and in the following manner:
 - Vegetable gardens may be watered at any time during such even numbered days.
 - Flower gardens, shrubs and lawns may be watered on such even numbered days only between the hours of 12 midnight and 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. and 12 midnight.
- Properties having an odd house number, or situated on the south or east side of a street are permitted to use water for garden purposes on odd numbered days ONLY, i.e., June 25th, June 27th, June 29th, etc., and in the following manner:
 - Vegetable gardens may be watered at any time during such odd numbered days.
 - Flower gardens, shrubs and lawns may be watered on such odd numbered days only between the hours of 12 midnight and 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Open hose irrigation is strictly prohibited. These regulations apply to Sundays as well as to other days. Any person found guilty of an infraction of any of these regulations shall be liable to a fine of not less than Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) for the first offence and not less than Fifty Dollars ($50.00) for each subsequent offence.

Everybody Is Saying—"Meet Me At The BAY'S Escalators"

By ART STOTT

ARE YOU scratching your head these evenings wondering what to advise the young hopeful to take in high school? Is your youngster putting childhood aside with the Grade 8 textbooks next week and launching forth on what may be the first steps of a career?

It's a trying time—apart from the mental strain of puzzling out the courses. Down in Grade 8 it was simple. The boy knew what he wanted to be—a cowboy or Dick Tracy. The girl would have settled for stardom in the films, for nursing or for a job in a candy store. At Grade 8 level, they begin to get ideas a little more ambitious than tinker, tailor, soldier, sailor or rich man. The poor-man-beggar-man-thief doesn't figure.

THERE ARE two approaches to the discussion. The whole family can sit around the kitchen table, pencils in hands, forms before them, and talk it over. That way you can be sure of one thing. Everyone who discusses the issue will have a different idea of what junior wants.

The formal approach is more impressive. After dinner you call the offspring into the living-room, shut the door to keep the small fry out, just as you did for that "birds and bees" talk a few years ago. You put your hand on the shoulder of the boy (or girl) and say: "Son (or Daughter), what do you want to be?"

That's the lead-with-the-elm technique. If he (or she) is hep, the answer will be: "A rich man's son (or daughter)."

WHEN THE window dressing's finished you get down to cases. You pull out the registration form the child has brought home from school and after a few explanations from him you see that he has to take four "constants." That means he must enrol for English, for maths of some sort, for social studies—geography and history to the older generation, and effective living. The last is a story in itself.

Then he can take a series of elective subjects, depending mainly on what he wants to be. That's where some hard thinking should start on the parents' part. This is a time to size up the youngster, to decide whether he's above average, average or below average; whether it's worth helping him through college or whether he ought to specialize on studies that will fill out his education to the approximate limits of his capacities, and prepare him for a job.

STRANGELY ENOUGH, the old idea that parents always think their offspring has genius is dying out. The modern mother and father take a more realistic slant at the proposition. There isn't so much of that "fighting like a tiger for his intellectual honor" as there used to be. Some adults will actually admit that Johnnie is a shade below the Einstein level and ought to figure on working as a mechanic, or in the lumber mills when he's through high.

Courses can be arranged for that and the preparation doesn't necessarily mean the student who takes them is going to be a heaver of wood or a drawer of water—not in this day of oil furnaces and new plumbing.

SOME OF US old die-hards don't see it that way, though. Even if the spark of genius hasn't flared into flame in the lower grades, we're inclined to understate brain-weighting and over-emphasize the idea that a kid with medium equipment can do better than average—can, in fact, pass university entrance examinations if he works at it. We think he ought to try.

We'll go part way, but not all the way, on the scholastic aptitude rating. Scholastic aptitude? That is the term that's replaced the once-popular intelligence quotient. The "I.Q." of the old tests. It develops that "I.Q." ratings aren't as satisfactory a guide as they might be, because there isn't any definite standard of tests that makes a complete and thorough examination of an intelligence.

PUT IT THIS way: a group of Indian children, newly introduced to school, may seem as bright as the new day. But they may show up poorly on an "I.Q." test because the subject matter of the test is foreign to their previous environment. The fault isn't with the Indian children, it's with the standards. They don't quite fit.

Let's get back to high school courses.

Picking the course is important. It can shut a student from university if he selects the wrong one. But one thing parents should know. They can be advisers only. It's strategic to advise the youngster along lines he wants. His interests are going to be important factors in his school success.

Flood Emergency Ended At Agassiz

Premier Also Gets Good News From Threatened Kootenay Area

Premier Byron Johnson this afternoon recommended withdrawal of the army from the Agassiz district of the Fraser Valley on receiving word the flood-threat emergency was over.

The Premier was advised by Reeve J. Fraser of Kent that the danger of flooding in the district no longer existed.

He immediately contacted army headquarters, releasing troops who have been standing by in the advent of water breaking the dikes and flooding residential areas.

The Premier also said he had received good news from the flood-threatened Kootenay.

He was advised dikes reconstructed following the 1948 flooding of the Kootenai River at West Creston were showing no weak spots.

Peak water in this area was expected Saturday.

Electricians Lose Preference Bid

Electricians at the Bloedel Stewart and Welch Lumber Company have failed in a bid to gain three concessions over pulp and sulphite workers of the company.

A conciliation board majority report rules against the electricians. The report was made known today.

Electricians asked reduction in work week from 44 to 40 hours; wage increase of 20 cents an hour, and three additional statutory holidays.

They argued their trade was more skilled than the pulp and sulphite men.

The conciliation board ruled it was important in the maintenance of good public relations that treatment of skilled employees be uniform.

The report was signed by Philip Fleming, chairman, and Ian Cameron.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Thomas Donovan, 1103 View Street, pleaded not guilty to a charge of operating a vehicle that was not insured when he appeared in city police court this morning. Charge is alleged to have been laid for a violation of the provisions of a restricted license. He was remanded to Tuesday for trial.

POLLS OPEN 8 TO 8

School Vote Saturday For 3 Municipalities

Voting on the school by-law Saturday will take place at Oak Bay Municipal Hall, two polling stations in Esquimalt and 20 stations in the two Saanich districts.

Voting is from 8 to 8 in all three municipalities. Polling station for section one in Esquimalt is the municipal hall, and section two, 855 Craigflower Road.

In Saanich polling stations for school district No. 61 are: Walton residence, corner Lansdowne and Richmond; Cedar Hill School, Cedar Hill Cross Road; Cloverdale School, Quadra Street; Tolmie School, Boleskine Road; Gordon Head School, Tynall Avenue; Cadboro Bay Boy Scout Hall, Penhryn Street.

Langley Prairie Man President Of Druggists

Ed. Blow of Langley Prairie was today elected president of the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association at the annual convention at the Empress Hotel today. He succeeds J. P. Kennedy of Vancouver.

Delegates elected G. F. Henderson of Vancouver as vice-president.

The convention which opened Wednesday will wind up with a banquet tonight. Delegates today took time off from business for golf, fishing, bowling and a sight-seeing tour of the city.

They were also guests at a reception held in the wardroom of H.M.C.S. Naden this afternoon.

Garage Says Early Closing Hits Tourists

Reconsideration of his application for midnight closure of local storage garages was sought from City Council today by C. A. Rawlings, manager of Causeway Service Station.

In a letter received at City Hall he contended the proposed new by-law which calls for 6 o'clock closure, or 24-hour service, would force him to close at 6 in the evening and this would be a hardship on tourists.

"We feel that this type of garage should not be treated in the same category as ordinary service stations whose only interest is the dispensing of gasoline and oil and looking after minor repairs," Mr. Rawlings wrote.

If storage garages closed at 6, he maintained persons would be forced to leave cars parked on city streets and in hotel grounds, "making them easy prey for petty vandalism."

$200 Fine In Income Tax Case

For a violation of the provisions of the Income Tax Act, John Arendell, 756 Discovery Street, was fined $200 by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court today. It was a minimum fine, the default one month in jail.

Arendell pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to deduct income tax payments from three employees' wages and forward them within a week of the day of payment.

Lloyd G. McKenzie appeared as Crown counsel. Arendell said it was a matter of forgetfulness and that there was no intent to violate the provisions of the act.

More Than 300 Entries In City's Flower Show

The Victoria Horticultural Society's annual flower show had drawn more than 300 entries when judging began this afternoon.

The Rose Society, an affiliate of the Horticultural Society is also taking part.

The show will last until Saturday evening at 9.30, when all exhibits will be auctioned off.

The Naysmith Challenge Cup will be awarded to the contestant with the highest value in prizes and the R. A. Nicholson Trophy will go to the best amateur exhibit.

Roses are the predominating entries.

A. B. White, Treasurer Community Chest

A. B. White, who recently replaced A. J. Ross as manager of the Royal Bank here, has been made honorary treasurer of the Community Chest in Victoria.

Mr. Ross, who was transferred to Vancouver, had been honorary treasurer of the Community Chest.

Motorist Fined For Dec. Accident

Involved in a collision nearly six months ago, Francis D. Cotton, 3520 Quadra Street, was fined $50 and his license was suspended for three months by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court today.

He was found guilty on a charge of dangerous driving laid under the Criminal Code as a result of an accident Dec. 30, at Cook Street and Princess Avenue. Vehicle damage was around $1,500 and Howard Bruce Knapp, 1002 Vancouver Street, the other driver, was in hospital for several months recovering from a multi-fractured pelvis.

George F. Gregory was counsel for Cotton.

Contractors, Workers Agree To Accept Findings Of Board

Representatives Say No Efforts Will Be Made For Second Board

Representatives of the contractors and carpenters at a conciliation board meeting today agreed to accept the findings of board and under no circumstances press for a second board.

Briefs prepared by both the carpenters and the Victoria Building Industries Exchange were read and discussed.

In a lengthy, statistics-filled brief read by Jack Finnerty representing the carpenters, a comparison between the cost of living index and the wage earnings was presented.

It was pointed out that the present $1.55-an-hour rate did not actually mean a $2-a-week salary for the complete year. The brief showed carpenters worked an average of eight and one-half months of the year, and the amount received from unemployment insurance did not nearly compare with the basic living requirements.

CLAIM DISPUTED

The fact that carpenters averaged only eight and one-half months' work a year was disputed later by George Wheaton, representing the Victoria Building Industries Exchange. He said the past winter had been "exceptional," and that the figure cut the working year too short.

The buying power of carpenters' wages had only risen 5.5 per cent in the last 10 years, compared with the 16.4 cost of living index rise over the same period, the brief showed.

The proposed new rate of $1.75 an hour was by no means too high for skilled craftsmen such as carpenters, it was said.

In the second brief, read by Mr. Wheaton, a review of the events leading up to the present conciliation board meeting was quoted. It was pointed out the carpenters had turned down proposals for a five-cent-an-hour increase.

VANCOUVER LEVEL

The proposed 20 cent increase was believed to be based entirely on the Vancouver level. Mr. Wheaton said in his brief: "It would have been the same if the Vancouver carpenters had asked either more or less, and that type of condition should not exist here. Victoria should be able to do its own bargaining, he said."

No city of importance other than Vancouver had over-stepped the five-cent-an-hour increase, Mr. Wheaton said.

Speaking for the building industries exchange, L. G. Scott said each of his carpenters earned over $3,000 last year.

It should not be overlooked that full employment, such as the carpenters have had, at reasonable rates, was better than part employment at a higher rate, Mr. Wheaton said.

Kinsmen Collect $1,500 Flood Aid In First Returns

The first returns from the Kinsmen's milk bottle collecting fund for the Manitoba Flood Relief were counted Thursday night. Jack Phillion, chairman of the committee reported that $1,500 had been received. This return is from three of the largest dairies, or about 20 per cent of the total receipts expected.

The Kinsmen are anticipating over $5,000 and are more than pleased with the results so far. They announced today that the campaign would end Sunday night and asked householders to be sure and make their contributions before that time if they are planning on giving to the drive.

CIGARETTES MISSING

C.P.R. police today reported to city police that a consignment of 11,520 cigarettes for the Imperial Tobacco Company, Vancouver, has been listed as missing. The report also states a pair of binoculars is missing. There was no indication where these were missing from.

PILOT'S WINGS and commission were received by P.O. J. F. Tomlinson, one of 21 R.C.A.F. flight cadets, in ceremony held at air force flying training school at Centerville, Ont. P.O. Tomlinson is son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Tomlinson, Bamberton, Tod Inlet. Wings were presented by Air Vice-Marshal C. R. Siemon, Air Officer, Commanding R.C.A.F. training command. (R.C.A.F. Photo)

Only One Made The Court Parade

Only one of the three men who were too drunk to appear in city police court yesterday showed up in court today. He was fined the usual $10 or three days in jail. The other two got out by posting $10 bails, which were ordered estraited.

ESQUIMALT DANCE

The Esquimalt Branch of the Canadian Legion will hold a dance tonight in its hall at 622 Admiralty Road. J. Radley will be master of ceremonies.

CHARGE WOMAN DRIVER

Following a collision June 18 at Douglas and Caledonia Avenue, Mabel C. McLean, 126 Howe Street, pleaded not guilty to a charge of careless driving in city police court today. She was remanded to Tuesday for trial.

Skirt Racks And Trays
Our Feature For Today

By RENNY SAVER

A clothes-hanger, a clothes-hanger, my kingdom for a clothes-hanger that will keep my skirts in tip-top order! No sooner said than found, and for a $1.39 at that! A folding skirt rack by name and a space-saver by character. This versatile rack will accommodate 11 or 12 skirts, quite comfortably in your cupboard, as well as fold itself up for your holiday traveling. The clothes-hanger type hook enables you to hang the rack on any closet door or rod and the metal clothespins take a firm grip on the skirts.

Lend an ear while I tell you about the picnic baskets I saw this morning. Thirteen inches long and eight inches deep, they are, with two sturdy handles to pack about your seashore goodies. Priced at $1.79 the "baskets" are made of metal, featuring a brown wood grain pattern on the outside of the container and a smooth pale yellow enamel on the inwards.

Stove pads to grace your range in the home and protect its enamel top are being displayed in attractive patterns and chromiums. The largest size, 18 by 20 inches, is sold for 70 cents and features a red and white all-over pattern. In the same size, but a finer finish, the $1.15 pad is designed with a potted geranium with tiny bouquets of the flowers in each corner. Shining with that clean-as-a-whistle look are the chromium pads that will match up in almost any kitchen. They sell for 95 pennies and matching little round, square or oblong pads to sit the teapot on, 15 cents each. You can also match up the painted metal pads for 20 cents.

Lunch for four, my dear, and we'll be very posh about it as we're going to use my new set of buffet trays. You haven't heard of them, you say? My hat, they're just the latest thing since steamboats! Larger than the ordinary lap trays, they'll take it on themselves to hold a luncheon-sized plate, cup and saucer, and a few accessories. Made of wood fibres and covered with lithographed paper, the designs on the trays include ducks in flight on a background of pale blue, the beautiful colors of a Japanese scene on a dove-grey background and the exquisite grace of gardenias placed on a backdrop of olive green. The set of four trays will cost you but $3.45 and you'll be able to use the set at teas, luncheons, bridge or on picnics. By the way, to clean them off merely wipe the surface with a damp cloth.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDERD

It is all too easy to adopt a pattern of behavior which momentarily soothes a child and then he is distraught to find ways to end it.

A worried mother has found that lying down with a child to help him get to sleep, no longer works, but she is tied to the practice. "My 20-month-old boy developed a distaste for going to bed about two months ago. Not realizing that this was a form of negativism, I began to lie down with him at bed and naptime.

"Now, he has called my bluff and he prolongs going to sleep for from 30 minutes to one hour, refusing to stay put long enough to fall asleep.

"Other people do not have this trouble with him, so I think he does it because he knows it irks me. I tried letting him cry it out, but he cried for 30 minutes and then I gave in.

"Do you think I could make a game of climbing in his bed with him and looking at books? If he cries when I do this, then what? Would this transition be too abrupt, or should I put up with his negativism a little longer? He is generally a happy child but not very animated or full of life. He tires very easily, especially if he plays with older children."

First, check with your pediatrician to determine whether his diet is proper and if there is any real physical reason for his lack of animation. Children of this age are dynamos of energy, so there may be some reason behind his fatigue beside the excitement of older children.

Our leaflet No. 38 "Sleeping Habits" may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Elderd in care of this newspaper.

Women Prominent In Child Guidance
Here For Garden Library In July

Outstanding women in the field of child guidance and mother counselling, will come from Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and many parts of this province, and one recently from Havana for Children's Garden Library's seventh summer session, beginning July 3.

Garden library is open to all children from 3 to 8, and to their mothers, for whom special mother's study and discussion groups are arranged. Among "mother leaders" will be Mrs. G. Crum, director of family life education for Seattle Public Schools; Miss Laura Miller, speech arts director, San Francisco Schools; Miss Alice Johnson, public health nurse; Los Angeles, and Mrs. Helen Chisholm, Nursery school director, recently from Havannah, Cuba.

More than 20 local and visiting volunteer leaders will guide children of different age groups carrying out the theme "every good gift."

Leaders include Mrs. W. W. McGill, director; Mrs. Kathleen Hilton, song leader and assistant director; Miss Trudie McGill, Vancouver primary teacher; Mrs. E. G. Petter, teacher of music and movement; Mrs. Margaret Ralph, pianist; Mrs. Marion McNaught, nurse; Mesdames A. C. Phillips, Mary Bleakley; Muriel Forsythe, Muriel McGowan, H. Gonder, May Davies, Ida Lesson, Jack Lord, Mrs. Freda King, Port Alice; Mrs. Rosalie Burns and Misses Ben-Kirley, Ruth Allen, Muriel Chisholm a student of social work, Toronto University; Miss E. May Colebrook, nursery school teacher, New Westminster; Mrs. Amelia Falls, Prince Rupert, and Mrs. Freda King, Port Alice.

Garden Library sessions begin at 9:30 a.m., continuing each Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning throughout the month.

The project, with a character-forming purpose, combines music, art, story-telling, simple drama, health rhythmic, singing games, action songs and worship in a garden. Its aim is to teach citizenship in the highest sense—a citizenship which seeks to serve, to give and to express the Golden Rule.

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

Give Pillows—Mrs. E. Woodward, vice-president, conducted Brentwood Women's Institute meeting when it was noted that two pairs of pillows and pillow cases have been bought by the institute to be given as a gift expressing sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Jack McIlinden and to Mr. and Mrs. Art Hager who lost their possessions in a recent fire. Miss M. Worthington and Mrs. H. D. Patterson reported that eight books had been purchased for annual gift to pupils of West Saanich School for the library.

Fall Tea—Plans were made at the last meeting of Women's Benefit Review, No. 1, held in K. of P. Hall, with Mrs. A. Barclough presiding, for a fall tea in the Douglas Room, Hudson's Bay Company store, in September. A sewing meeting was arranged at the home of Mrs. D. Barr, 1155 Vista Heights, on Monday evening.

Dominion Day Tea—Mrs. C. H. Smith and Mrs. G. G. Gunn were appointed conveners of a Dominion Day tea sponsored by Matthew Baillie Begbie Chapter, I.O.E. Arrangements for the affair, in Douglas Room, Hudson's Bay Co., on June 29, were made at a chapter meeting with regent, Mrs. H. D. Parizeau in the chair. Mrs. F. R. Moore and Mrs. MacMillan will convene home cooking stall and a musical program is being arranged by Mrs. W. J. Parry and Mrs. J. Bleachley. Dominion Day motif, red, white and blue, will be carried out in floral decorations and signs will be painted by Mrs. C. Ricketts. Members voted $30 to V.O.N. for cod liver oil.

New Members—Five new members were initiated at last meeting of Ladies' Auxiliary, Victoria Aerie No. 12, F.O.E. Mrs. M. Hallam presided; Mesdames E. Rose and M. Carver were named to the Solarium committee, and Mrs. D. Fairhurst, G3495, general convener of the ball bazaar. A sum of money was voted to Salvation Army Red Shield drive. Certificate of merit was presented to Mrs. Carver, a lace tablecloth to the drill team and a farewell gift to Mrs. J. Martindale who leaves shortly to make her home in New Zealand. "Mother" Spaven made the presentation.

TODAY'S RECIPE

CRUMB BERRY PUDDING

Half cup fine dry bread crumbs, 1/2 cup quick rolled oats, 1 cup sour milk, 1/2 cup shortening, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1/2 cup sifted flour (all-purpose), 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup berries (strawberries, logans, blueberries or raspberries). Soak crumbs and rolled oats in sour milk for 1 1/2 to two hours. Cream shortening ingredients and add alternately with crumb mixture to the creamed fat and sugar mixture. Blend thoroughly. Fill individual moulds two-thirds full. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees F., individual moulds, 25 to 30 minutes; cake pan, 40 to 45 minutes. Serve cold with sweetened crushed berries. Yield: eight servings.

Cook Book Sells 'Like Hot Cakes'

LONDON (Reuter) — New editions of Mrs. Beeton's famous cook books are selling like hot cakes, say the publishers.

They report that they have had clerks working eight hours a day for more than a month, involving nothing else but the new cookery series.

The new edition of Mrs. Beeton's most popular book, "Household Management," took nearly four years to prepare. It represents the work of a team of 20 experts, and its 1,680 pages contain 4,000 recipes.

Isabella Mary Beeton (1836-1865) first produced her monumental book on household management in monthly parts in 1859.

Return South After City Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Elridge, who spent their honeymoon in Victoria, the home of the bride's parents, have returned to Tracy, Calif., to make their home. They were married earlier this month in Reno, Nev. Mrs. Elridge is the former Betty McKinnon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie McKinnon, and a graduate of Royal Jubilee Hospital. Her husband is the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Elridge, Tracy.—Photo by Frank Parker Studio, Reno.

Miss Gladys Beall Honored By Oaklands Teaching Staff

Eighteen members of the staff of Oaklands School gathered in Miss Lillian Smethurst's classroom at the tea hour yesterday to honor one of their teachers, Miss Gladys Beall, who is retiring from the service this term.

Miss Beall has spent the past 26 years of her teaching career at Oaklands School.

Pale mauve pinks and nepeta in a shallow yellow pottery bowl decorated the tea table where Miss Pearl Kinnaird and Miss Nellie Wheeler presided.

Presentation of a set of electrical appliances, including combination toaster and waffle iron and a kettle, was made by the principal, Mr. Norman Forbes, on behalf of the staff.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Sykes, who arrived in Victoria from Gloucester, Eng., aboard the motorship Drungo this week, will spend the summer months with Mrs. Sykes' parents, Col. and Mrs. F. H. King, 3425 Cadboro Bay Road.

Mrs. A. C. Ross is leaving for Vancouver tomorrow where she has been invited to attend the second "I Am a Canadian Day" ceremonies at Kitsilano Pool on Sunday in the mainland city as guest speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. James Riddell of North Vancouver are visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. F. LeQuema, Langford. They will be guests at the wedding of the nephew, Mr. Gordon Ritchie, to Miss Elaine Evelyn Esler at First United Church this evening.

Mrs. T. C. Smith has returned to her Vancouver Street home following a three-week visit in eastern Canada and the United States. She attended as a delegate from Victoria meetings of the National Liberal Women's Association in Ottawa, and visited in Detroit, Chicago and Seattle en route home.

Miss Edith McGill will spend the weekend in Seattle where she will attend the Mu Phi Epsilon Honorary Music Sorority national convention. Her sister, Miss Trudie McGill, arrived today from Vancouver, where she has been teaching during the past year, to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McGill, 1170 Tattersall Drive.

Misses Grace Halstrom, Marjorie Ledingham and Jean Crowe were co-hostesses at a miscellaneous shower held in honor of Miss Clarice Dymond, at the former's home, 121 Obed Avenue, last Wednesday evening. On arrival, the guest of honor was presented with a corsage bouquet of red rosebuds and white carnations and her mother, Mrs. R. M. Dymond, and Mrs. W. W. Duncan, mother of the groom-elect, with pink carnations. Gifts were concealed in a white and blue basket decorated with pink roses. Games were played and Miss Peggy Schoen gave piano selections. Later refreshments were served. Other guests included Mesdames O. Schoen, D. Gratton, M. Bumgardner, L. Ledingham, M. Coppiner, L. Hackins, G. Thyme, M. Carr, C. Halstrom, B. Black, P. Thorburn, J. Drew, V. Diment and Misses Pat Mufford, Pat Sleep, Pat Bayliss, June Knappett, Marie Stevenson, Bonnie Dymond, Merle Black, Lila Halstrom, Bea Carlisle, Fernie McDiarmid and Jean McDiarmid.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left for Vancouver, en route by motor to Alberta, and on their return will live at James Island.

Given in marriage by Victor F. Bradley, the bride wore a blue-lace dress with accessories in pink. She was attended by Miss Mae Thompson, who wore navy blue accessories with her grey frock. Both carried colonial bouquets of sweet peas, roses and carnations.

Harry W. Smith, the groom's brother-in-law, was best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, 2363 Cookman Street, where a two-tier wedding cake was cut. Mrs. V. Anderson and Mrs. M. Thompson assisted in welcoming guests.

Mrs. T. A. Duthie, Portland, Ore., is the guest for several days of Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. C. Barstow, 736 Byng Street, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Barstow have returned from Vancouver where they and their daughter, Miss Joan Barstow were among guests at the Jackson-Harris wedding, Saturday evening. Other guests from out-of-town were Mrs. Earle Vance, Mrs. Leslie Hobby, Woodfibre, B.C., and Mrs. Duthie.

Mrs. V. Barstow is general convener, assisted by Mrs. A. McVie, games; Mesdames V. Gibbons, F. Carey, L. Matheson and H. Chamberlin, afternoon tea; Mesdames B. Casey, M. Murray and G. Schuk, home cooking; Mrs. P. Brophy, ice cream and pop; Mrs. M. Glover, candy; Mrs. M. Barclay, white elephant; Mrs. W. Hermiston and Mrs. H. Swetnam, flowers and vegetables; and Mrs. P. Pedersen and Mrs. A. Fairweather, kiddies.

Mrs. B. Thomas is in charge of ticket sales.

Leave Today For Boston Home

Mrs. Gilman Haven, with two-year-old Ronnie and baby John, leave today with Dr. Haven for their home in Boston, Mass. The young family have spent the past three weeks with Mrs. Haven's father, Dr. Douglas W. Graham, 2925 Lansdowne Road. Mrs. Haven, the former Aileen Graham, left the city a number of years ago. She attended University of British Columbia, and lived for some time in Montreal. This is her first trip home in eight years.

U.S. Prosperity Helping Britain Increase Trade

By FORBES RHUDE

Present United States prosperity is the key to much of the optimism in the world today. It is contributing mightily, for instance, to the improved situation in Britain, because of American buying of raw materials in sterling areas.

It is cheering to Canada for two reasons. Because it makes it easier for us to sell across the border; and because it is supplying overseas customers with dollars with which they may buy from us.

It is only about a year since the talk was of "recession" in the United States. Actually, this turned out to be an inventory recession—a precautionary step taken by business firms to make sure they weren't caught with too much goods on hand. They just stopped buying for a while, but real demand was so great they had to stock up again and the United States is back in a virtual boom.

At the moment there doesn't seem to be any prospect of an early set-back.

Canada hardly felt last year's American recession at all but, of course, she would have if it had continued.

Of the European situation, John A. Marsh, general manager of the Canadian Exporters' Association, has this to say:

"Anyone visiting the Canadian International Trade Fair in Toronto recently must have been impressed with the degree to which Britain and western Europe have recovered from the Second World War."

30-Day Jail Term For License Theft

A 30-day jail term to be concurrent with the six-month jail term imposed earlier in city court, was imposed against Charles Gibson, no fixed address, by Magistrate H. C. Hall in Saanich police court Thursday afternoon.

This was for theft of Gerald Udall's driver's license. The longer sentence was for forging Udall's name on a car-hiring contract to secure a U-drive car.

Martin Queripel saw the man who had entered the house stop short and turn as if called. But Detective Stivers was not calling to the fellow. Stivers was speaking to himself, thinking that Queripel was nearby and his cry was one of discovery.

"Kelso, I've got you now!" he sang out again. Queripel did not move. He did not know Detective Pete Kelso by sight, and he wondered if this intruder might not be he. As Stivers spoke a second time, the fellow had whirled as if summoned by name, but now he stood, puzzled and alarmed.

Stivers' voice came again: "Steal my fingerprints, will you, Kelso! Well, just try it again!"

Now Queripel was sure the visitor was Kelso himself, for the man advanced swiftly but silently to the doorway and peered intently at Stivers who was bent over his table examining the prints he had found. The intruder did not suspect the existence of Queripel, who could have reached out and touched him. But Martin Queripel preferred to watch from his concealment in the heavy folds of the portieres.

For a moment, Kelso—if it were Kelso—plainly hesitated whether to retreat or to advance. Queripel could hear his heavy, hesitant breathing.

Then as Stivers laughed again and gloated over his fingerprint specimens, Queripel saw the man reach slowly into his pocket, draw a revolver and level it at Stivers' back. Before Queripel could get out his own pistol, the man changed his mind and grasped it by the barrel with the manifest intention of bashing in Stivers' skull.

Queripel, much smaller and older than the stranger, was paralyzed by the thought that, before he could get out his own gun and shoot the man down in his tracks, Stivers would be dead, or at least horribly mangled.

Then, as he saw the man raise his pistol high over his shoulder for a crashing blow and move forward, Queripel pounced. More startled than Stivers would have been to find himself suddenly dead, the stranger felt a heavy weight land on him from behind. He felt two small but desperate hands seize his uplifted right wrist. He felt two knees, one in his shoulder blades and one in his left hip.

PULLED OVER He was pulled over backward with a disabling crash and fell on top of some small man who squirmed out from under him while he was still stunned by the blow the floor dealt him, and the cracking thump of his skull on the bare floor beyond the edge of the rug.

Stivers sprang up from the table and whirled about. Staring down at the prostrate giant, he cried:

"Kelso!" "So that's Kelso!" Queripel chorled. "You called him and he came to you like a spirit out of the vast deep."

Queripel had wrested Kelso's revolver from his grasp as he fell. Now he shifted it from his right hand to his left, and brought out his own automatic. He did not trust the weapons of strangers to be loaded. He was so childish with relief and triumph that he chuckled to Stivers:

"Look, Pop. I'm a two-gun man."

Kelso's skull was still shaken by his brainquake and he was never quick at repartee. Indeed, the situation might have stumped a quicker wit than his. He just lay still and took in what Queripel had to say.

"We have no warrant for your arrest, Kelso; but we're going to hold you here for trespassing until Stivers calls your brother police to take you home. Stivers, you'll have to call the station from the hall. I'll see that Kelso doesn't fight you for the phone and beat you to death with the base of it—as he did when he called on poor Wendell Palmer and the old man not only refused to be blackmailed by Kelso's woman and her keeper, but rashly reached for the telephone to expose Kelso's threats."

Queripel had a purpose of his own in saying all this to Kelso. It was a sort of try-out of his theory on the one person living who would know how accurate was Queripel's reconstruction of the crime.

IN AGONY

So he dumped his whole story into Kelso's upturned face as with a shovel, and saw Kelso wince, close his eyes, cover them with his forearms and writhe in agony like a scotched snake.

It was as good as a written confession of guilt, with the added terror of wondering how Queripel could have learned the truth.

Next, Stivers leaned over him and told him just how and when he had stolen his own fingerprints and substituted Paul Moody's. He added:

"And a lot of good it did you! You ought to have known that the fingerprints on the telephone felt would not have been at all like the fingerprints on Paul Moody's statuary. Any fool could have seen that!"

In his excitement Stivers neglected to give Queripel credit for opening his own eyes to the difference. But Queripel was never one to fight for credits. He was feeling almost sorry for Kelso, who was unhappy for such a multitude of good reasons for being unhappy.

Even the deep velvety surface of the rug on which his body rested seemed as hard as a slab in the morgue, and as public.

Board To Build Second A-Pile When Asked

OTTAWA (CP and UP)—The Atomic Energy Control Board Thursday indicated readiness to build Canada's second—and more advanced—atomic pile as soon as the government gives it the green light.

The government has its Chalk River atomic scientists and the defence department research board "working closely" to map plans and studies for atomic defence of Canada.

This team, said the annual report of the Atomic Energy Control Board, has arranged courses to carry forward efforts to prepare the country to cope with A-bomb attack.

The report, tabled in the Commons by George McIlraith, parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe, said that changing conditions, "including evidence of an atomic explosion in Russia," are the background for recommendations for release of more fundamental scientific atomic information which now is under consideration by officials of Canada, the United States and Britain.

Officials said recently it is planned to build another pile at Chalk River, but it is not known just when and, in the meantime, information about the best type to build is being accumulated.

Fine For Motorist Whose Car Hit House

Owner of the car which ran downhill and collided with a house at 1424 Begbie Street on June 17 was fined $15 by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court Thursday. Robert B. Simm, 1540 Elford Street pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to have adequate brakes on his car.

Vancouver Ponders Cut In C.N.R. Land Assessment

VANCOUVER (CP)—Whether this city will appeal a B.C. Appeal Court judgment allowing a $150,800 assessment reduction on Canadian National Railways lands must await further study by city officials.

Arthur E. Lord, the city's counsel, said reasons for the judgment have only been received from one of three presiding judges. Any possible city action would have to await study of reasons from the two other Appeal Court justices. The court judgment reduced total assessments on one block of C.N.R. terminal lands by $20,000 from the 1949 assessed value. The reduction represents a city tax loss of $7,800.

Big Fish There But No Angling

MONTREAL (CP)—There's a fisherman's paradise right in Montreal's "back yard" these days, but there is one big restriction—no fishing.

The scene of this angler's nightmare is the new provincial hatchery located in suburban Lachine. Behind a sturdy steel fence, Muskellunge, bass and wall-eyed pike are carefully nursed to a size big enough for provincial lakes.

The muskies, main product of this "factory," are brought along through a series of crib-like hatcheries until they are big enough to be placed in pools. Some of them are more than four feet long, weighing up to 35 pounds.

Then, as the demand arises, they are shipped out to "market."

In charge of this new hatchery is Gustave Prevost, head of the provincial biological bureau. It was largely through him that the bureau, co-operating with the city of Lachine, started construction.

By the time the hatchery is finished, it will be equipped with a three-story building housing laboratory and offices, a series of small hatching tanks and a large artificial pond for the "big fellows."

The hatchery will close again in the fall, but will operate all-year-round when installation is completed.

Spanish Duchess Quits Crusade For Pretender

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Ill health may halt the gashing Duchess of Valencia's militant crusade to put the pretender Don Juan on the throne of Spain.

Generalissimo Franco's government wasn't able to stop the red-haired, 34-year-old woman with heavy fines and a prison term.

But informed sources said today her doctors have ordered her to retire from politics.

Her breakdown began in prison in 1948. Associates of the fiery, attractive duchess said that even Don Juan, in Lisbon, has insisted she give up her fight.

The fourth and last arrest of Maria Luisa Narvaez, Duchess of Valencia, occurred Feb. 23 at the door of the Madrid office of the Associated Press, where she came for an interview. She was acquitted June 15 by a military tribunal. April 6, 1948, she and her monarchist associate, Jose Pardo, had been convicted of high treason and she was sentenced to a year in prison.

Persons who have water supplies analyzed for purity should remember that a correct interpretation of quality can be made only after several samples have been taken over a period of time.

President of Olson Motors Ltd., R. S. Olson first started work in city in 1922, later going to Nelson and Calgary with transportation business. Returned to city in 1940 and was in tourist business before joining MacLeod Lumsden in 1945. T. Lumsden, secretary-treasurer, started in automotive business with own tire shop in 1922. Aging People Surplus In World's Population

TORONTO (BUP).—For the first time in the history of the human race, there is a surplus population of aging people in the world.

Dr. A. H. Sellars, medical statistician for Ontario, released figures showing the longevity of the human race, from the bronze age to the atomic age. They show that although you may wish for the good old days when life was simple, and you lived like Alley Oop, you wouldn't have much time to enjoy it.

The average life expectancy during the bronze age was 18 years. The ancient Egyptians lived an average of 22 years. Whatever you may think of life in the twentieth century, at least there's half a century more of it.

That increase in life expectancy has caused worry to officials whose business it is to worry about these things. The "gravity" of population is shifting.

Dr. Sellars said that in 1901 only 15 per cent of Canada's population were between the ages of 45 and 64. By 1951, just half a century later, 21.5 per cent will be in that age group, and more than 5 per cent of the population will be over 65.

This gradually-increasing percentage of older persons is becoming quite a problem. Older persons cannot get jobs. In January nearly one-third of the total unemployed in Toronto were over 45.

Mrs. Jean Good, of the Toronto Welfare Council of Old Age, said the 20th century over-emphasized youth. The role of the older person in shaping the future has been ignored.

A recent survey revealed that older workers showed less absenteeism, had fewer accidents and were less inclined to exchange their jobs.

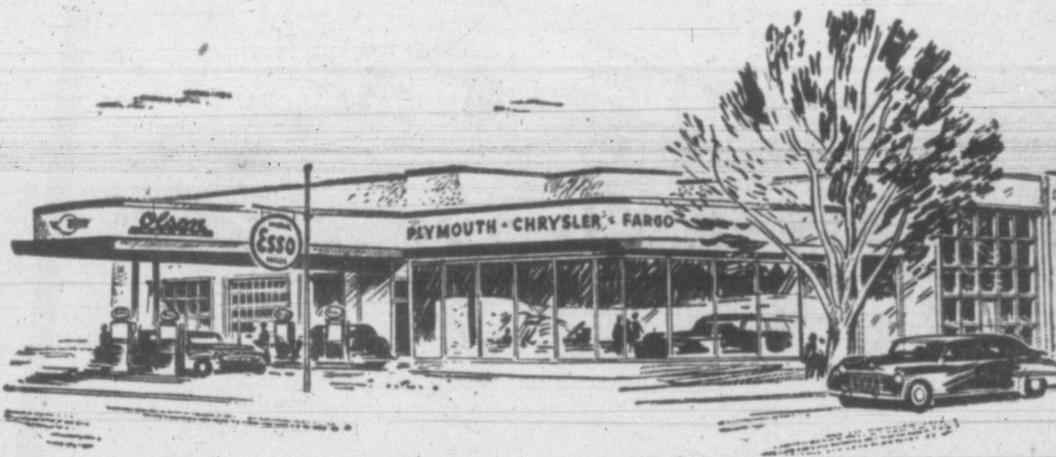

But youth has the final say, and men in their 40's who wish a change of profession find it difficult. Companies are reluctant to employ them, as they have to contribute more to pension funds.

Mrs. Good drew a comparison between the atomic bomb and grandparents. She said both had great potentialities for good.

There are about 1,100 members of the religious Society of Friends (Quakers) in Canada.

Mayor George To Open Olson Motors Building

Tomorrow afternoon and evening will be a highlight for Olson Motors Limited, Victoria distributors for Plymouth, Chrysler and Fargo trucks. It follows the official opening by Mayor George of the smart new modern building at 1060 Yates Street, on the corner of Cook. An invitation to the motoring public of Victoria has been issued and from 2 in the afternoon until 11 in the evening, the management will welcome friends, customers and the general public who wish to inspect the up to date premises.

Visitors to Olson Motors tomorrow will participate in the allocation of door prizes, the first of these being a brand new Philco combination radio with 12 records. Other awards will include electrical appliances, toasters, clocks, percolators and similar items. To be in line for one of these prizes all that is necessary is to ask for a prize slip from the gas pump attendant or at the door of the showroom. Special decorations, music and refreshments will add to the gala atmosphere at Olson's tomorrow.

LONG PLANNING

The completion of these new premises is the culmination of long planning on the part of the management. The firm as it is today was formed in 1945 under the name of McLeod Lumsden Ltd., with the present president, R. S. Olson as a partner. On the retirement of Mr. McLeod in 1948 the name was changed to that of Olson Motors Ltd. The original premises had long been inadequate for the ever-increasing volume of business.

The new premises are among the most modern and up-to-date of any on the coast. Roomy, light and airy the whole is designed to give the maximum in facilities for efficient service under ideal working conditions. Convenient access is featured at the four gas pumps under the canopy, while the inside shops are departmentalized according to the work to be done. Overhead fluorescent lighting, air conditioning to carry off exhaust fumes, adequate heating and a well-planned shop makes for maximum efficiency.

MODERN EQUIPMENT

The most modern scientific equipment, including the "Bear" wheel alignment installation, a modern "grease bar," a fully-equipped tool room, the latest in tire equipment, motor tune-up and testing instruments and a long line of double hydraulic hoists occupy the main shops. These double post lifts are more powerful and efficient, cutting much from operating costs and with consequent saving to the customer. Down below are the paint and body shops, while close at hand the used car department is practically completed.

All work is synchronized by means of a control board that allows the shop manager to know the progress of work in all departments. Downstairs is the body shop and paint shops. Showrooms and offices are in keeping with the modern design. In the front is the showroom with the business office opening off it. To the rear of this is the parts department, where a com-

Boys Endanger Mountaineers

CAPTOWN (CP) — "Crackpot" youths are held responsible for several incidents which might have ended in the deaths of innocent climbers on Table Mountain recently.

Almost every week-end huge boulders are sent crashing down the slope to scatter parties of mountaineers. One mountaineer said he had twice barely escaped death from "these mountain madmen."

He had had to crouch against a cliff-face to avoid a big rock which had been rolled down towards him. Other smaller boulders were then rolled down, and he fired three shots at the spot where he reckoned the boulders had been set in motion. The rolling of boulders stopped immediately.

Face-climbers, roped together, have been numbed with fright by rolling boulders, and on two occasions tragedy has been averted by sheer luck.

One of the mountain ranger's staff was climbing Jacob's Ladder, the only ascent up a narrow gully, when a big rock struck the top rung, missing him by inches. Had the ladder been upset, it would have meant certain death for the ranger.

The mountain staff say that European youths are responsible and that "rolling down" boulders is their way of "having fun."

Brushing Teeth After Every Meal Can Be Harmful

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP) — Brushing teeth after every meal or drink makes them more susceptible to dental decay. This is the conclusion reached after a year's tests by Dr. R. E. T. Hewat for the dental committee of the New Zealand Medical Research Council.

Dr. Hewat thinks as a result of the tests that there is a maximum level of dental hygiene and that excessive brushing and rinsing beyond that point may do more harm than good.

The tests were carried out with a group of student nurses who observed the strictest dental hygiene for a year. As a result they showed more dental decay than a group of nurses who had no special instructions.

On the other hand Dr. Hewat found that a group of nurses who cut out biscuits, cakes, sweets, chocolates, ice cream, free sugars and cordials for six weeks during the year had less dental decay they can't keep the accounts straight at their social club.

Auditors found the club's books so muddled that in investigation was held.

It showed that "the inaccuracy was not in any way due to 'fiddling' (sharp practice) but to inexperience of the finance committee," the club chairman reported.

Now a non-scientist handles the club's books—which show a balance of £23 0s 3d ($99.25)—and the scientists spend all their time on formulae no accountant would ever understand.

Tourist Outsmarts London Trickster

LONDON (CP) — Ever heard of the man who "sold" the Sydney Bridge? Lucky for John McNamara of Wellington, New Zealand, that he had.

John was admiring the foundations in Trafalgar Square when a middle-aged man ambled up to him and engaged him in conversation.

"When he learned I was a Colonial," John said, "he told me the fountains were to be dismantled and were for sale. I roared with laughter and the confidence trickster had the decency to run away."
